By Telegram to The Freeman
Gallion, Ohio April 4 --high
Rev William Montgomery Brown
retired Protestant Episcopal bishop

For herest at Trinity Cathedral Hill, Cleveland, May 27, he announced to day.

The presentment grows out of twenty charges alleged against a conference. A Bishop Brown's book, "Christianism and Communism," while it has been printed in Catholic circles and had wide circulation, I will place the charge Bishop Brown said today. FARM MACHINERY BIG AID TO AGRICULTURE Professor Compares Hoe to Latest Implements.

New York.—The importance of improved farm implements to successful agriculture is discussed by E. R. Gross, professor of rural engineering, in an article prepared for an agricultural publication of New Jersey. The article refers to the days prior to the coming of farm machinery, which were the days of the hoe, spade, cradle and flail. Mr. Gross mentions the many different kinds of farming machinery, and then he writes:

"The man with the hoe could be hired for $3 a month; later he received $10 a month, but as machinery came into use labor became more skilled and wages increased. To produce a bushel of wheat by hand required three hours and three minutes, but with machinery it can be done in less than ten minutes. Besides this, the quality of grain has been improved by the use of machinery; for the seed may be planted in proper season, thus giving the full-length growing period. In early days much grain was harvested green, resulting in shrivelled grain of poor quality.

"The cutting and curing of a ton of hay used to take 11 hours of man labor; now it requires about an hour and a half.

"Machinery has increased also the production per capita in this country. In 1850, 5.43 bushels of wheat per capita were produced. In 1900, production had reached 8.69 bushels per capita.

Workers Released to Cities.

"While machinery was saving time and increasing production per capita it was also releasing people from the farms to work in the cities. In 1800 probably 97 per cent of the population of the country was on farms; by 1909 this was reduced to 35 per cent, and now some estimate that only 10 per cent are actually engaged in the production of food, though there may be a slightly higher per cent living on farms. All this indicates the tremendous influence farm machinery has had upon civilization. Probably not over a million Indians lived on the North American continent, yet at times they were in want of food. Now the United States alone supports a population of 110,000,000 and is a food-exporting nation."

The State college of New Jersey offers to students an opportunity to study farm machinery in a practical way which is explained by Professor Gross in this fashion:

"This work consists of a study of the principles of construction and operation of the common farm machines. A textbook is used, but the machines themselves are found in the laboratory and careful examinations are made of all adjustments. The student farmer learns that a chilled plow is better in sandy soil, but that a soft-center steel plow is better in heavier soil. He compares various makes of plows with a view to selecting the one he would purchase.

"Unfortunately, schools and colleges must do most of their work during the winter season when field work is at a minimum. However, in fall and spring opportunity is afforded to see field operations. Many laboratory operations illustrate field conditions. Thus the knotters of the binder may be studied almost as well as under field conditions. Straw may be fed into the machine and bundles tied so that causes for failure to tie the knot may be observed and the remedy be applied. In this way proper adjusting is taught.

Leaves College Prepared.

"This same general plan is carried out for all farm machines studied. It is always kept in mind that the first essential is the thorough mastery of the underlying principles of mechanics which govern the work of the machine. The student leaves the college understanding these principles and therefore becomes a skillful operator.

"Many farm boys are not fortunate enough to take a four-year course at college. To meet the practical problems of such farm boys short courses are offered each winter at the State college, New Brunswick. Here the farm boys gather from all parts of the state and study crops and animals. They also receive training in the operation and care of farm machines.

"Students who take such a course will not do as Farmer John did. He, having been induced by the wideawake salesman to buy a new plow and discard the old, was found a few days later again using the old plow. The salesman seeing this called: 'Good morning, John; how's the new plow?' The snappy answer was: 'No good. This one does better work.' After some argument, Mr. Salesman induced John to hitch on the new plow again and give it another chance. The new plow was of the same make as the old, but being improved it had adjustments not possessed by the old. John was competent to handle the old, but had not attempted the adjustment of the new, preferring to discard it instead. After careful adjustments had been made by the salesman, the new plow far outlasted the old. John and the salesman parted friends."

Koenigsberg.—Young pigs, handled scientifically, can be made to take on weight at the rate of two pounds a day, according to government experts. Ah, Lady, Lady.

Why do I like you, lady?
Not for your golden hair—
There are a hundred ladies
With coiffures much more fair.
Why do I like you, lady?
Not for your mist-blue eyes.
They are not half so lovely
As the enchanted skies.
Why do I like you, lady?
Why should I fall for you?
I don't know why I should, lady.
But the fact is that I do.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 5, 1924.

While the senate investigators are busily dispensing lurid testimony to the public, fish dealers have taken their cue and are painting their salmon red. The Department of Agriculture has taken a hand in the latter deception, and will vigorously prosecute the offenders. Unfortunately, there is no higher authority to suppress the senatorial colorings, and they will probably persist until some of our people have been poisoned.

THE MISSING VOTER.

When Edward W. Bok of Philadelphia offered a prize of $100,000 for the best practical plan as to the method by which the United States might help to maintain the peace of the world, there was so much general discussion that it may be said safely a large majority of the people of the United States had a fairly comprehensive idea of what it was all about.

This knowledge was augmented by discussion in Congress when it was proposed to investigate Mr. Bok and his $100,000. When $50,000 of the prize was awarded by the jury of award to Dr. Charles H. Levermore, a referendum was taken throughout the country to determine whether the Levermore plan met with approval. The vote was by ballot, and 792 daily newspapers, besides weekly newspapers and magazines, printed the ballot and at the same time published the Levermore plan, a summary of which was printed on the ballot itself. In some parts of the country, industrial organizations, chambers of commerce, colleges and church organizations busied themselves in getting people to vote, all of which received an amount of publicity seldom accorded to any public movement. Yet as a result of all this activity and discussion, the entire United States cast a total of only 610,558 votes.

The Daily Freeman was one of the 792 daily newspapers in the United States which on the same day printed the ballot and featured the referendum which started that day. The same ballot and feature story was also published in The Semi-Weekly Freeman, so that more than 1,000 ballots were distributed through The Freeman. All that anybody had to do in order to express his opinion either in favor of the plan or against it was to clip the ballot, mark it and mail it to the committee, whose address was plainly printed.

The combined circulation of The Daily Freeman and The Semi-Weekly Freeman, totalling about 12,000 copies, reach more than the actual subscribers; it is conservative to estimate the total number of readers of both papers at more than 50,000. But according to the American Peace Award's committee which received and tabulated the ballots according to the publications or other sources from which they were received, the number of ballots clipped from The Freeman was 3.

Assuming that some of the readers of The Freeman used the ballots provided by the Central Trade and Labor Assembly of Kingston, which receives special acknowledgement from the Bok prize committee, and that some clipped ballots from Metropolitan newspapers or magazines, they did not all do that because the total vote from all sources in New York state was only 118,408. The Policy Committee of The American Peace Award announces that "Hundreds of meetings, inchons, discussions and debates have been held as a part of the referendum. We believe that the minds of millions of people have been stirred and that information as to the factors in our foreign policy have been extended by this referendum." The committee also states that "The referendum was not a curbstone vote on a generality, but thoughtful vote on a particular method of international cooperation."

* * * A number of voters not content with merely mailing the ballot sent in copies of the plan with their marginal notes and votes on every section of it."

If the people were really interested in the Levermore plan and believed it possible to be put in operation, why were there not more votes, either favorable or adverse? According to the committee, the city of Utica polled 70 per cent of its registered vote, and "some of the smaller towns and villages polled every registered voter." Even with special effort in such isolated cases, the total vote was less than the population of Boston.

The figures show that not even all the cranks voted. Why didn't they? And what shall be said of the rest of the people?

That Body of Yours

A FREQUENT CAUSE OF BACKACHE.

You have a pain in the back and you have been unable to find out just what is causing it. Your physician has examined the urine, and finds that there is no trouble with the kidneys.

There is no infection from the teeth and tonsils and the pain is not down low enough to be in the joint joining the hip bone and the back bone together.

There is still another cause for this constant backache that is overlooked by many people.

As you stand sideways and look into your mirror, you notice that the pain is just in the centre of the bend at small of back.

In other words perhaps you have too much of a hollow back, have a "sway back" as it is called.

If, added to this, you have begun to put on weight and have a protruding abdomen, then you have likely found the cause of your trouble.

As you put on weight, or get careless about your carriage, you let the abdomen sag forward.

What happens? It simply carries the spinal column forward with it, and produces that sharp bend just exactly where your pain is located.

You see you were never meant to stand that way.

You were meant to stand erect with the abdominal muscles in front, and the small of back muscles behind, just nicely balancing one another all the time.

In fact if you could see these muscles, you would be greatly impressed with their similarity.

The front ones run up from the hip bone in front to the breast bone and ribs and the back ones run up from the hip bones behind, and the bone between them to the ribs behind.

Just a nice even balance you see. So when you allow your abdomen to sag, you pull the poor back muscles forward in a constant strain; hence your pain.

In severe cases the spinal bones get pulled forward and the weight of the body is upon the back part of them, from whence emerge the nerves.

Another source of pain. Hold yourself erect with your own muscles if possible.

Whilst developing the muscles, an abdominal belt may be worn.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

ST. AMBROSE'S DAY.

Today is Saint Ambrose's day, when Catholics honor the memory of the eminent Father of the church who was Bishop of Milan in the fourth century. Ambrose was a citizen of Rome, born in Gaul. He became Bishop of Milan in 374 A. D., succeeding Auxentius. At that time the orthodox and Arians were at war, and when the people assembled in the church to choose a new bishop, the tide of contention ran high. Ambrose appealed to them to lay aside their differences and proceed to the election in the spirit of Christian humility. When he had finished his address a child cried: "Ambrose is bishop," and this was immediately and unanimously ratified by the assembly. During his life time Ambrose was zealous in combating the Arian heresy, and the superstitious of the heathen.

ROOF AND ATTIC DAMAGED

Fire which started from the chimney in the basement and ran up the and communicated with the roof of the road ice of Alfred Berryan at

No. 120 Boulevard about 9:30 o'clock
Thursday evening called out the fire department when an alarm was sounded from Box 221, Washington avenue and Boulevard. According to Chas. Chapp the loss is covered insurance.

Thursday at noon the chimney was covered in fire but the members of the family extinguished the flames, without calling out the department. The house is a two family frame structure occupied on the one side by the Ber-ryan family and on the other by the family of George. Both families are musicians and in the cellar of the house were several incubators which were filled with eggs, some about ready to hatch. The hatch was never covered by the deluge of water which seeped through the floors into the cellar.

Both families were home at the time of the fire and heard what was going on. They investigated and found the fire in the attic and immediately in the alarm, and then, with the aid of neighbors began to carry out the household goods and stack them in the now outside the house and in small garage nearby.

In Mrs. Berryan's mother was ill was carried from the apartment taken to the home of a relative.

When the fire alarm was turned on the usual race to the fire engines and the resulting congestion of traffic.
The quick response of the fire department the flames were confined to the attic and roof of the house. There was only one fire hydrant in the immediate vicinity of the house and two lines of hose were hooked leading to the big pumper of the department which gave sufficient pressure to throw the streams high enough to shoot the water on the roof of the burning house.

In addition to the fire damage there was considerable water damage when the streams of water seeped down through the attic floor onto the floor below.

IN WASTE WATERProfits From Simple Processes to Remove Metals.

Thousands of pounds' worth of gold and silver are saved each year from dirty water which would otherwise pass into the sewers.

Wherever business is conducted on a large scale, and more particularly where articles of commerce are turned out on the mass production system, the control of waste is a vital part of organization. This is especially the case where the raw materials used are precious metals.

In factories producing gold and silver articles, such as jewelry, gold-rimmed eyeglasses and so on, minute portions of the metals become attached to the hands of the workers. Special arrangements are therefore necessary to prevent the loss of these minute particles, which aggregate to large values in the course of a year. Where gold is concerned, the wash-basin is the trap used. All the workers wash in special basins, the dirty water from which is stored and treated. The gold, being heavier than water, sinks to the bottom, the water above it being drained off periodically. The accumulated sludge is sent to the refiners, who extract the gold and pay for it.

Large sums are also saved in photographic workrooms by rescuing the silver which escapes from plates and films and photographic papers during the process of development.

The hypo in the fixing bath dissolves out the unused silver. When the bath becomes exhausted and dirty, instead of going down the sewer it is run into tubs into which a chemical is thrown. The silver falls to the bottom. The water is then run off and more exhausted hypo is added, the precipitating process being repeated, and so on until the tub is nearly full of sludge.

The refiner extracts the silver from the sludge, returning to the factory sums which are often large enough to cover the rent.—London Tit-Bits.

Vegetable Pear

The chayote, a popular vegetable in Mexico and Central America, has been grown for more than a generation under the names "vegetable pear," "Milton," "mango squash," etc., in certain sections of the South.

A single vine in a garden or yard will produce more than enough chayote for an average family. It is an excellent fall and winter table vegetable.

The chayote is related to the cucumber and squash. It weighs from eight ounces to a pound, has a smooth surface, a fiber-free flesh and a delicate, agreeable ornamental vine for training over a porch or outbuilding. It flowers profusely, and for that reason is a good bee plant.

The fleshy underground tubers are used in some places much the same as potatoes in temperate regions. Its foliage makes good food for cattle and poultry.—Detroit News.

King Invents Language

A few years ago Nkomo, king of Zombani, in the Cameroons, became jealous of the particularly good set of secret languages of neighboring tribes and invented from French, English and German words a code tongue of his own which is reserved for the exclusive use of the "rabit" and upper administrative officials.

The interesting feature of this state language, which was discovered and studied by a Frenchman, Lieutenant Clapot, is that, instead of meaning their usual equivalent, the European words have entirely different connotations. "La mission," for instance, means "to see," and "franc" means "the king." "Ordnung" means "we," "savant" means "an egg," and "franc" means "a hill." "Left" means "which," and "England" means "a head."—Manchester Guardian.

Braggart's Boht

A Yankee told of to a London club was making himself rather unpopular by bragging about the American navy. "The fact is, friends," he said, "Mrs. Britannia no longer rules the waves. Why, if it ever came to war between your country and America our fleet would come out and tow your fleet right into New York harbor, and that would be the end of it." "Perhaps you're right," said one of the listeners quietly, "but it would take a better man than Columbus to discover America afterward."—Boston Transcript.

R-r-r-venge!

Little Jack had been so persistently naughty that mother just had to give him a good spanking, and all that afternoon a desire for revenge rankled in his little breast.

At length bedtime came and, kneeling down, he said his evening prayer, asking a blessing upon all the members of the family individually—except one. Then rising, he turned to his mother with a triumphant look saying, as he climbed into bed, "I suppose you noticed you wasn't in it." The Christian Guardian.

Belle of the Funeral

One of the best narrators of Irish stories is Lord Carson, who always tells them with the gravest face. One of his best is an Irish "wake" story. A pretty girl was invited to the funeral of a friend. When it was over, she was telling how much she enjoyed it. "Sure, it was grand," she said. "They put me in the second coach with the brother of the corpse, and I was the belle of the funeral!"

New Spring Fabrics Are Sure to Please Women

From the most inexpensive cotton to silks of gorgeous hues and striking patterns the new spring fabrics are proof that designers never forget for a moment the instinctive feminine love of change.

While the effect is of extreme slenderness there is a great deal of plaiting used in a way that adds tremendous chic but does not disturb the slim lines of the fashionable figure.

Printed silks and cotton are extensively employed in the fashioning of the smartest frocks and their keynote is that of delightful simplicity. The apron tunic is an integral part of several of the prettiest dresses. Sometimes it is attached to a belt that fastens to the frock itself, but frequently the apron is joined to the waist so that with a change of foundation skirt one may vary the appearance of one's costume.

On one model this apron tunic is joined to the waist under a folded sash. The upper part may be worn over a skirt of the same gayly printed silk or one of a plain color that predominates in the pattern.

A very pretty fashion is to have an apron tunic made of embroidered net and real silk or Irish lace. This completes a simple frock of chiffon or crepe de chine in pastel colors. The effect is charming.

Green Is Important on Spring Color Program

In the showings of models for early spring green stands out as one of the most important colors of the new season. Every possible shade appears, from the pale tint of the first budding leaves to a dark shade of bottle green that promises to achieve an extraordinary vogue.

There are several tones of this particular color, so that whether one is blonde or brunette it is possible to find just the right shade to harmonize with one's hair, eyes and complexion. This is rather an important point to emphasize, for the greens of other days were always a bit glaring. Thanks to the color artists of the present time, every color has so many different tones that there should not be any difficulty in selecting the appropriate tone.

Used alone it is chosen for exceedingly smart frocks of cloth or of the new silk mohair that has taken the world of fashion by storm. In combination with white it is unusually effective and has inspired several charming models of white crepe with folds or pipings of green.

Little Suit of Black
Is Acme of Simplicity

Nothing will give greater satisfaction than a suit made on rather boyish lines. The number of new models recently brought out indicates that the vogue of suits of this type will continue into the spring.

Many are in the high colors, lovely rich shades of red and green, but the little suit of black with its gaily printed handkerchief used for a stock and its gardenia or carnation pinned to the lapel remains the acme of chic and sophisticated simplicity.

Printed Silks With Twill

Black crepe satins and flat crepes are featured in the spring collection. Printed silks combined with charmeuse in two-piece models have a decidedly practical appeal. Silk alpaca is confined to models of sports character. The sheerer fabrics, such as georgette and chiffon, are used for evening gowns.

Woman Forgets

HUSBANDS often forget their wedding anniversaries and other marital celebrations—a fault corrected only by tearful wives. But sentiment in wedded life is more injured when a woman forgets—when she forgets the importance of those refinements in her personal appearance—such as keeping her hands attractively smooth and clear.

Since red, rough and coarse looking hands result from the use of inferior soap, you should be as careful about the kind of household soap you use as you are about toilet soap.

THINKING women insist on Kirkman's Soap because they know it is as harmless to their hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap.

Its ingredients are guaranteed to be the purest and no adulterants such as starch, talc or water-glass, which have no cleansing value, are ever used.

And no soap is made that will wash and clean more easily and thoroughly than Kirkman's.

Diseases traced to constipation are many —get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

Why does constipation breed other diseases? Because it floods your system with dangerous poisons. And the longer you suffer, the more poisons accumulate. That is why constipation should be relieved at once.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. They know it brings results because it is ALL bran. And only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective in relieving constipation.

ALL bran — Kellogg's — sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts as a nature acts. It makes the intestine function naturally and regularly. If eaten regularly, it will bring permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation—is guaranteed.

to do so or your grocer returns your money.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will like the wonderful Kellogg's flavor—so crisp and nut-like—so different from ordinary bran, which are most unpalatable.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. And by all means try it in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

MEXICAN TOWN'S ODD ICE PLANT

Water Freezes When Placed in Maguey Leaves.

"Durango City, the capital of the state of the same name in Mexico, which hovers on the border line of the Torrid zone, provides itself with one of the most peculiarly manufactured ice supplies in the world," reports a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"When the maguey, or century plant, has had the seven years of growth necessary to blooming and its bud has been tapped for pulque, in most places it is destroyed. At Durango, however, all the plants are assembled in one place, usually in the gardens in the eastern part of the city, where the leaves are laid out with their cupping surfaces upward on the ground, which has been covered with straw for the sake of cleanliness.

Freezes in Maguey Leaves.
"Into each leaf is poured about two quarts of water. Although the temperature is not low enough to freeze water in the canals or when it is placed in some domestic utensil, it does freeze in the maguey leaves. The ice is gathered in the early morning and put into the ice houses, which are built of adobe and are about twenty feet square, and twenty feet deep. The ice is thrown in through an opening in the roof and the silvers melt together and form a solid mass. Later on it is cut out and sold to the cheaper trade in competition with that from the city's ice factory, as long as it lasts, which is usually until about the middle of July or the first of August of the year.

"No explanation has been offered as to why this peculiar method is used, but scientists are surmising that it is because the leaves, being shallow, give a broader surface exposed to the excessive evaporation and consequent cooling which naturally occur in such high altitudes, for Durango lies more than 6,000 feet above sea level.

Tin Protrudes From Flagstones.
"Some of the streets of this city, often called the 'town of sunshine' because of its wonderful climate, are paved with flagstones measuring about 18 by 30 inches in size, which contain large quantities of almost pure tin in kidney ore, some of the single stones having as much as three or four pounds of tin in them. Where the softer stone has worn away, the metal protrudes in a manner painful to the feet as one gets the sensation of walking over marbles scattered on the pavement.

"The region around this state capital of 30,000 inhabitants is said to be a veritable hunter's and fisherman's paradise, with its duck and large game shooting and the abundant fish life in its streams, but the fly in this blissful ointment is a poison scorpion whose bite causes from thirty to forty deaths each year.

"The Spanish Conquistadores found the site pleasing. Alonso Paredes in 1533 laid the foundations for the present-day city, under the direction of Gov. Francisco de Ibarra, who named it for a city of his native province in Spain.

"The history and development of Durango are inextricably linked up with the Cerro del Mercado, a hill of high-grade ore estimated to contain 400,000,000 tons of metal, averaging from 70 to 75 per cent of pure iron, which was discovered in 1552.

Hills Bureting With Metals.
"The hillsides of the state of Durango are fairly bursting with metals. They have been famed since colonial times for their output of silver and gold. The city of Durango, formerly was the seat of a Mexican mint, built in 1811, which coined more than a million dollars worth of silver and gold each year. The silver and gold output today are valued at several million dollars. Mines in the state also yield quantities of copper, iron, cinnabar, zinc, and lead.

"The Avino mine opens its rich vein of silver gray ore and pours it out in an open quarry which is still yielding the precious metal, though it has been mined for 350 years, since the time when the Spaniards decided it to their white inhabitants living near it, who would build their houses close enough together to protect them from the raids of the savage Indians. The cathedral which now stands in the city of Durango owes its very existence to the Avino mine. The taxes placed upon its output built the church. It has been told also that several of the mines in the vicinity permitted the miners to carry out a piece of silver ore, which they presented as an offering to the priest, who sold it for building materials.

"The engineers of old Durango built well for the water works of the city, which were dedicated in 1728, are still intact and the canals built at the same time still traverse all the principal streets, from which the court yards of the houses obtain water for irrigation. Though a modern system of water works has been installed in later years, the old water works are still in use and alone serve the outlying districts."

SURVEYOR FINDS TWO BIG LAKES ON BAFFIN ISLAND

Are Comparable in Size to Lake
Ontario—Iron and Coal Found.

"That the southern part of Baffin Island contains two lakes comparable in size with Lake Ontario, and that the island, which is almost 1,000 miles long from north to south, is nearly five times as large as Cuba, were some of the striking facts brought out in a report by F. D. Henderson, P. L. S., of the topographical survey of Canada.

Mr. Henderson, in the capacity of surveyor and topographer, accompanied the 1923 Arctic expedition of the northwest territories branch, Department of the Interior of Canada, under J. D. Craig, D. L. S. His duty was to survey lots for posts for the Royal Canadian Mounted police, the Hudson's Bay company and other private interests at the points at which the Canadian government steamer Arctic called, and to take magnetic observations and make topographical surveys wherever possible. In all, eight lots were surveyed at Craig Harbor, Dundas Harbor, Eskimo Point, Ponds Inlet and Pangnirtung, and short traverses were run at the two latter places. As the governing lines of the Dominion lands surveys system have not been extended to the Arctic islands, all lots were classed and numbered as group lots.

The conditions were unusual. Continuous daylight prevailed during part of the period in which the surveys were made. Solar observations were the only kind taken and Greenwich time was obtained from the ship's chronometer checked up by wireless, that great aid to the scientific worker in the field.

In the intervals between survey work trips were made to inspect outcroppings of iron and coal (one of the latter is used locally as a source of fuel supply) and the condition of the Eskimo habitations, the character of the vegetation, etc., were noted. Mosses and lichens were everywhere in abundance, and flowers, the most conspicuous of which was the yellow Arctic poppy, grew in all sheltered places, sometimes within a few feet of a glacier. No trees were found, the nearest approach being the shrublike Arctic willow with branches half an inch in diameter. The branches spread out horizontally close to the ground. It was sometimes possible to gather enough of the wood to boil a kettle of water. Blueberries were found at Ponds Inlet, but smaller and not so sweet as in southern Canada.

At Ponds Inlet and Pangnirtung there are native villages near the Royal Canadian Mounted police and Hudson's Bay company posts containing normally from 75 to 100 Eskimos each, although at times as many as 200 natives assemble at these points. Those at the former post live in permanent huts, under the direction of the authorities, have been neatly arranged in a line along the shore, whereas at the latter the natives still retain their skin igloos.

At many places there are remains of Eskimo encampments and villages. Some of these are evidently very ancient and it was suggested that they would probably yield a rich store of valuable material to the archeological excavator.

Rescued From Drowning in River by Chinese Pirates

Mrs. S. B. Davis arrived in San Francisco recently from the Orient on the Pacific Mail liner President Taft with a diverting story of having been rescued from drowning by Chinese pirates and a denial that she is, or has been, a moving-picture actress, even if her maiden name was Margaret La Marr. The lights for Mrs. Davis is the time when the boat she was in was wrecked on a Hongkong river during a storm she was saved by the crew of a Chinese pirate junk.

Statue of Apis Found Near Budapest, Hungary

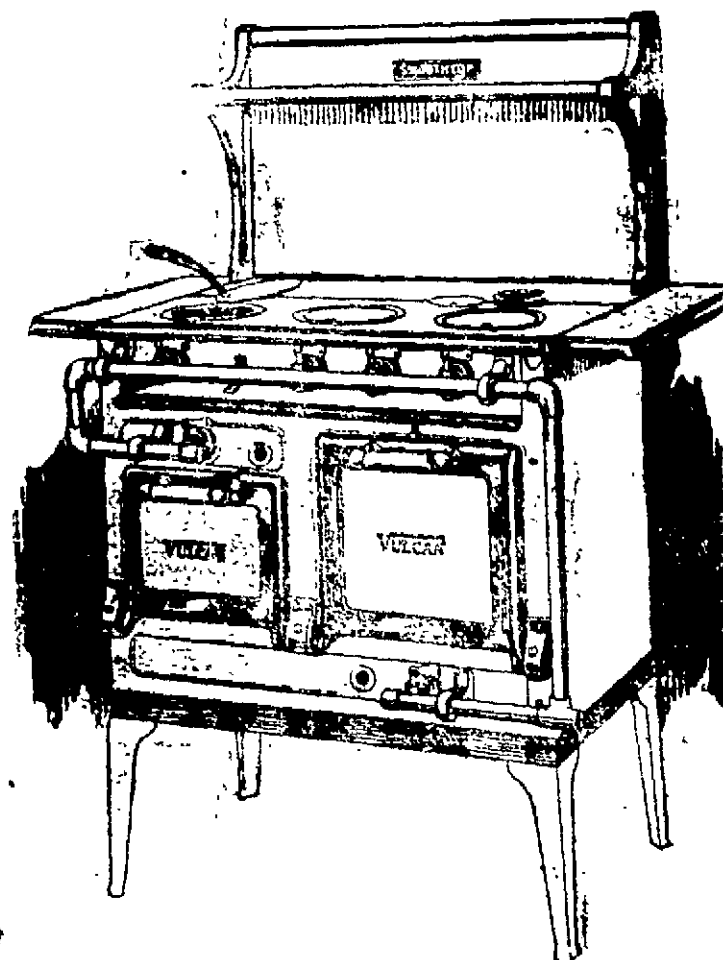

The discovery of the statue of Apis, the Egyptian bull of Memphis, and a pyramid in the former capital of the old Roman colony of Pannonia, near Budapest, Hungary, which has just been announced, is looked upon as constituting further proof that Egyptian culture was spread wherever the Roman legions penetrated in the Second century.

These valuable relics will be examined by international experts.

WRITER ESCAPES DEATH IN RUSSIA

American Says Trotsky Plans New Revolt.

Imprisoned in Moscow for nearly six weeks and under sentence to be shot for being a spy against the soviet government, Richard Eaton, a youthful American newspaper man, with many acquaintances in Washington, is free today because he had the foresight to conceal some money in his shoe, with which he bribed a prison guard to carry a message to British friends. The latter effected his release.

Eaton, who now is in Washington completing a vacation of about three months, told of his brief but eventful visit into Russia. As a correspondent of the London Daily Mail and Le Matin of Paris, he succeeded in getting in and out of Petrograd, now Leningrad, and went to Moscow. Awakened from his sleep at two o'clock one morning in June of last year, he was confronted by two soldiers, who carried a blank warrant for his arrest. Stripped of all personal belongings, he was taken to the "dog kennel," a small jail housing 35 prisoners at the time in a tiny room with no windows.

Sentenced by Woman. "I was placed in solitary confinement," he related, "and was fed on black bread with one large dish of herring soup from which all the prisoners ate. Then after a few days I was taken before Simanova, the real chief of the foreign department of the Cheka, the secret society which is responsible for the many acts of terrorism which have horrified the world. She is a Russian woman less than thirty years old, a beautiful blonde, with innocent gray-blue eyes. She conducts all the important interrogations and is merciless in her demands for punishment.

"During my examination I denied being an English spy. She at once said in Russian to an assistant (they thought I only spoke German), 'he must be shot.'

"So, charged with being a spy and sentenced to death, I was sent to the famous Boudirsk prison, where I found that on the day I was arrested the Cheka had arrested 400 priests and eight of the nine archbishops of Moscow. Three hundred priests already were in the prison. There were prisoners for all sorts of queer offenses—one charged with being a counter-revolutionist because he went to church every Sunday.

Bribed Guard to Aid Him.

"After a long stay here I bribed a guard to carry a note to some British friends in Moscow and then I was taken to the Loubliker, within which is another prison known as the Vcheka, or 'madhouse.' Only prisoners sentenced to death are placed here. I was put in a cell with five other persons, one a priest, who prayed constantly for twenty-four hours. At the end of this period I was released, but was escorted to the frontier by two Russian soldiers with rifles and fixed bayonets."

Eaton declared a revolution in Russia is imminent. Trotsky, he said, fell in love with a beautiful Russian woman, Mile. Naumoff, and it was his plan to procure from every European government a passport and a small pension, so that he and his sweetheart could live in peace. The soviet found out his plan and now he is in supposed exile, while in reality, according to Eaton, he is in south Russia rounding up an army of Cossacks to overthrow the present government.

Bolshevik a Queer Person.

"They all want a finger in the pie," Eaton said. "The defection of Trotsky is more important than the death of Lenin."

Living conditions in Moscow, Eaton continued, are about the same as in Washington, if one has the money. The highest legal salary paid is about $30 a month, and ordinary clerical positions bring about $10. "You can't eat meat every day on a salary of that size," he commented.

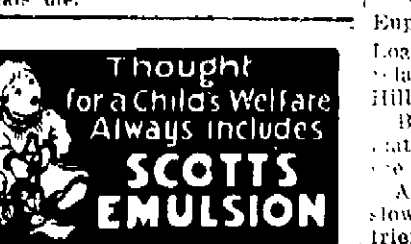

The Bolshevik is a queer person. "You've got to know him and deal with him accordingly. When I was arrested I was cross-examined for ten minutes on the question of being a titled American prince or duke, and at the end of that time this fellow still believed it. But it was not until he went into another room and found that America hasn't any nobility that he finally believed me."

Eaton arrived in Washington about three months ago and went direct to California for a rest. He was born in Seattle, Wash., but has spent much of his time in Europe. In 1922 he was Washington correspondent of the Westminster Gazette.

"Land of Fire" Has Heavy Fall of Snow

Tierra del Fuego means "Land of Fire," but the past year, at least, it has belied its name, according to Consul A. C. Brady at Punta Arenas, Chili, who says the severest winter in many years has been experienced the last season in Chili and Argentine Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego.

Much snow has fallen and freezing temperatures have prevailed for long periods since early June. In Punta Arenas the lowest temperature was 6 degrees above zero, but camps in tributary territory have reported 5 to 12 degrees below. Heavy losses of sheep are feared. After a hard winter many animals die.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair into a beautiful dark and luxuriant jet. A few applications will prove a revelation to your hair. It is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is a troublesome task. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and inviolate.

FIND MODERN FAGIN HAS CRIME SCHOOL

Baltimore Police Say Thief
Coaches Boys to Rob.

Baltimore, Md.—A school of crime in which a band of boys were taught burglary, pickpocketing and shoplifting was described by the police following a series of arrests and alleged confessions.

The teacher of the school, whom police termed a "modern Fagin," held classes nightly and taught secrets of the "underworld," they say, that he had learned during a life of petty thievery between periodic years of imprisonment.

The teacher taught his pupils well, Lieut. William Forrest declared after he had struggled with each of the young prisoners in verbal duels for hours to force them to yield the secrets of the school.

Many thefts solved.
More arrests are expected to clear up a series of mysterious burglaries in the wholesale district, whose cleverness for months has baffled attempts to solve them, police believed. The loot, police said, would exceed $5,000.

The known organization of the "school," they said, was something like this:

John Besisl, thirty, alleged teacher, who was confined at St. Mary's industrial school from the time he was thirteen until he was twenty-one. He since has been arrested several times, records show.

Rosario Provenzo, seventeen, at the head of the class, with a record of assignments in juvenile court for throwing stones at trains and for petty larceny.

Joseph Anichukitis, fifteen, also having a record, chiefly for truancy.

Frank Muffalo, fifteen, still in short trousers, who, police said, was the most hardened of the gang.

Long Battle of Wits.
Sergeant James Cain and Policeman Anthony McHale uncovered what they describe as a "modern Fagin" gang with the arrest of Provenzo.

A long battle of wits resulted in the arrest of Besisl and the other boys.

When faced with part of the alleged loot, said by police to have been found in their homes, they confessed burglarizing warehouses of the Baltimore Candy and Tobacco company and the Lee Morgan Coffee company.

The school of crime was organized so carefully, police said, that chances of the students being caught in the act were few.

The boys would enter a building near the one to be robbed, make their way to the roof and climb in the sky light of the place where the real "haul" was to be made. From a place of concealment, nearby, according to the police, the teacher would signal danger or safety with a flashlight.

Sense of "Loyalty"

Even after their arrest loyalty to Besisl was unbroken until they described how the teacher divided the spoils, Sergeant Cain said. He added:

"Then they 'squeaked.' They accused him of taking clocks, pistols, jewelry and other loot and selling it. They would get a few trinkets and a dollar or two to keep quiet.

"If they protested he would threaten to have them turned over to the police, they told us. They never dared refuse to do his bidding.

"The romance of having a room in Besisl's flat as a rendezvous also had its lure. They said to meet there regularly, they said, and learn how to steal without getting caught."

Awed Explorers Gaze for Three Days at Phenomena

Washington—Robert F. Griggs, professor of botany at George Washington university, the first white man to set foot in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, Alaska, spoke on his initial trip into the valley at a meeting in the Cosmos club.

Motion pictures of the many phenomena in the valley were exhibited, and Doctor Griggs told of the many experiments made by his party. He said that when the valley was first viewed it was three days before any of the party could do more than gaze in wonder.

No living creature or any indication of plant life was found in the area covered by volcanic ash thrown off by Mt. Katmai but on the edges of the valley, trees grow in abundance, the explorer said.

The intense heat has no effect on the perpetual snow banks that abound on the fringes of the valley, he said.

Finds North Australia Holds Many Surprises

Sydney, N. S. W.—Edward A. Cowie, recently completed a leisure stroll of more than 2,000 miles, as the crow flies, from Melbourne to Darwin, in the north of Australia. His object was to make an examination of mid-Australia and the northern territory to substantiate his contention that those sections were not worthless wastes. He took more than 300 pictures of scenes along the route.

Speaking of his experiences with natives in northern Australia he said they appeared to be of a better class than those of the south.

"The territory is full of surprises from the pastoral viewpoint," said Mr. Cowie, "being well watered and suitably grazed and timbered. Free from droughts, the much maligned north country must soon come into its own."

EX-BARBER HEIR TO $75,000,000 ESTATE

Ancestor Was Kidnaped
Son of French Duke.

Greenwich, Conn.—George Dennis of Harrison, N. Y., former barber, painter and handyman, has become heir to $75,000,000. It was stated here recently.

According to the story, which reads like fiction, George Dennis, a sailor on a British warship cruising off the coast of France during the French and Indian war, kidnapped the three-year-old son of the Duc de Longville, with the intention of extorting a ransom for his return. Because of the fortunes of war the warship had to leave hurriedly for safe waters before negotiations for the boy's return could be completed, and in consequence the lad was brought to America where, under the care of Dennis, he grew to manhood.

Not until he was on his deathbed did Dennis disclose to the boy his real identity, and at that time he left a written statement of the kidnapping episode. The boy took the name of Dennis and while living in the vicinity of Rouses Point, a border town on Lake Champlain, he married an Indian squaw, and several children were born to them. Generations passed until today George Dennis the Harrison barber, is the sole survivor of the family.

During the World War he enlisted in one of the American contingents as a cook and while in France he met a youth named Bertrand, son of a French baron. Dennis disclosed to him the story of his ancestor's life. Bertrand's father became interested and started inquiries. He knew that the French government held many estates in trust for lost heirs, many of them dating back before the French revolution. The Duc de Longville had died of a broken heart soon after the kidnapping of his son.

Bertrand came to America recently and disclosed proof of the Harrison man's claim to the estate of the duke.

Adventurers Seek Gold in Ancient Aztec City

San Francisco—Treasures of the ancient fabled Aztec city of Bacul will be sought by a party of adventurers, who will leave here soon, according to plans announced by Gen. Melville Boynton, engineer and soldier of fortune.

Twenty-four men and Miss Mayme Williamson, artist and former army nurse, will make up the party. The country into which the expedition will go is in the high and unpopulated ranges of the Sierra Madre mountains of Mexico. The cold and difficulties of travel have deterred exploration of the region, according to General Boynton.

Headquarters will be established at Culiacan. The search for Bacul will sweep in a 300 mile circle about that point. The Aztec city contains untold riches, according to Indian legends.

Card Party Given for 3,200 Players

Cleveland, O.—Thirty-two hundred women "sat in" on what is said to be the world's largest card party here recently. Eight hundred tables covered the entire vast floor of the public auditorium when the bridge games started.

Proceeds will go to charitable work.

Even if floor space was available, no more could have been taken care of Mrs. J. Powell, secretary of the club said.

"We had about all the card tables in town," she said.

The GULF STREAM

Map of Gulf Stream and Other Atlantic Currents.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

It is a seeming paradox that the world's greatest, "river" has no banks. But the paradox disappears when the Gulf stream is introduced as this mightiest of terrestrial "rivers." Though it has no banks throughout most of its course, its margins are fairly well defined for many hundreds of miles; and even where it skirts the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, nearly 2,000 miles from what is generally thought of as its "source," its edges can be distinguished almost sharply when crossed by a change in the color of the waters.

That the Gulf stream deserves to rank as perhaps the greatest of streams can be seen from the staggering volume of water which it carries at a fairly rapid rate. In fact, some who have studied it and other ocean currents closely have called it "probably the grandest and most mighty of terrestrial phenomena." A calculation of the average volume of water passing through the 40-mile-wide Straits of Florida—where the Gulf stream comes nearest to having "banks"—gives the enormous sum of 90,000,000,000 tons each hour. If this one single hour's flow of water could be evaporated, the remaining salts would make several cargoes for all the ships of the world.

Even this tells but part of the story, for the Gulf stream does not come solely from the Gulf of Mexico. One branch flows northward outside the West Indies and joins the Gulf of Mexico branch north of the Bahamas. The main Gulf stream, then, as it flows along the coast of the Southern states above Florida, probably moves as much as 180,000,000,000 tons of water an hour—a flow that utterly dwarfs that of all the world's Amazon and Congo and Mississippi.

The Gulf stream has had a role in world affairs, the importance of which is seldom realized. For ages it has helped in the scattering and evolution of animal and vegetable forms. It has held the climate of much of northern Europe in its moving waters. But for its beneficent work as carrier of equatorial heat to the northward and eastward England might have the climate of Labrador, and Norway the bleakness of Greenland. It has even had much to do with the geological formation of large areas of the ocean's bottom by determining the places of sedimentation. And day by day it is a factor in the price of everything carried afloat between Europe and America, as well as in the safety of all who cross the Atlantic.

Helped to Shape History.
The great current has had its part, too, in shaping the history of America. Before the discovery of the New World, strange woods and fruits were found on the shores of Europe and the off-lying islands. Some of these were seen and examined by Columbus, and to his thoughtful mind they were convincing evidence that strange lands existed somewhere to the westward. These objects were carried by the Gulf stream and by the prevailing winds from the American continent, so that in part the stream laid the foundation for Columbus' famous voyage. Once under way, and sailing across the southern rather than the northern portion of the Atlantic, Columbus had the return flow of the great circular stream to help carry him to the West Indies.

Ponce de Leon, famous searcher for the Fountain of Youth, discovered the Gulf stream at the point where, constricted between Florida and the Bahamas, it flows most mightily. He tells in his journal how, in attempting to sail southward along the Florida coast, with a good wind behind, his ships steadily lost ground because of a mighty current flowing northward.

The division of the English colonies into New England and Virginia was probably in part due to the routes by which they were reached. Vessels bound from England to New England crossed the North Atlantic outside the limit of the Gulf stream, or in a feeble adverse current. They had the advantage, too, of crossing the Newfoundland banks and of being able surely to replenish their provisions by fishing.

This voyage, however, though advantageous to the New Englanders, situated in the North, was not considered practicable for vessels bound for the Southern colonies. They sailed south to the trade-wind region, through the Caribbean and around Cuba, thence following the Gulf stream to their port.

The first seamen to become fairly familiar with the limits of the Gulf stream between Europe and America were the New England whalers, who found their quarry only outside the current's warm waters. Benjamin Franklin heard of their experiences, and also how the coasting vessels from Boston to Charleston, S. C., sometimes would take three or four weeks to make the southward voyage, but would often accomplish the return trip in a week. He found, too, that English packets with American mails were two or three weeks longer on the voyage to America than in the reverse direction.

Named by Franklin.

Franklin suggested the name, "Gulf stream," because it issues from the Gulf of Mexico. Although it is only a part of the grand scheme of Atlantic ocean circulation, and though the Gulf of Mexico is in reality only a sort of way station for this part, the name is generally applied to the current as it was given by Franklin.

In the large funnel-shaped opening between Cuba and the western extremity of the Florida reefs the current is somewhat erratic, but by the time Havana is reached it has become a regular and steady flow. As it rounds the curve of the Florida shore the straits contract and the current then practically fills the banks from shore to shore and reaches almost to the bottom, which at this point has a greatest depth of nearly 3,000 feet.

As it leaves the Straits of Florida its direction is about north, but it gradually changes and follows a course approximately parallel to the curve of 100 fathoms depth until it arrives off Cape Hatteras, and maintains about the same width as when it issued from the Straits of Florida. From this point it starts on its course to Europe. It has lost something in velocity, as well as temperature, and as it journeys to the eastward it gradually diminishes in both, until at last it becomes a gentle flow.

On this part of its course it passes not far from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, where it is met almost at right angles by the great Labrador current, bringing down from the Arctic a stream of cold water, packed ice and icebergs. This floating ice, dumped into the Gulf stream, was the cause, not many years ago, of the appalling Titanic disaster.

When this cold current meets that of the Gulf stream, of much higher temperature, the former undercuts the latter. The shallow-draft pack ice, being no longer under the influence of the polar current, is carried to the eastward by the warm Gulf stream current and soon disappears, but the deep-draft bergs are still under the influence of the lower current running south, as well as of the surface current running east, and so they continue on until well into the Gulf stream, sometimes reaching the thirty-ninth parallel, which is nearly 200 miles south of the southernmost point of the Grand Banks.

This ice, together with the fog which usually accompanies the meeting of currents of considerable differences in temperature, has compelled steamship companies to make a detour around the region of danger.

Congress early recognized the importance of learning everything possible about the Gulf stream and authorized the coast survey to make observations. In the Straits of Florida it was found that the greatest surface velocity was about four miles an hour and that this maximum was reached about eleven miles from the Florida shore. Even at 250 fathoms, or 1,500 feet, below the surface the great stream was found to be moving along at about a mile an hour. At this point the stream is about forty miles wide.

Explained by Scientists.

Numerous theories have been advanced to account for the Gulf stream and other ocean currents. But the many observations of the coast survey and the studies of the late Admiral John Elliott Pillsbury of the navy have about settled the matter in favor of wind and wave. The trade winds are the real parents of the Gulf stream. Though they vary somewhat in exact direction and in velocity, they blow steadily, on the average, in the same general direction in the west, year in and year out. Their friction induces a current in the water in the same direction. At first—if one can imagine the beginning of the Gulf stream's flow—only the merest surface skims were driven along with the wind. But gradually the motion was communicated from layer to layer until at last the movement extended to water hundreds of feet below the surface.

Origin of Photography

Photography has made such rapid strides in 50 years that it is almost incredible that one of the first and earliest processes in the development of photography was the daguerreotype, invented by L. M. Daguerre of Paris and first publicly used in 1839. The lights and shadows of a landscape or figure were fixed on a metallic plate by the action of actinic light rays.

RECALLS TRIP TO THE NORTH POLE

Peary's Aid Tells of Great Discovery on Fifteenth Anniversary.

Fifteen years ago April 6 the Stars and Stripes were unfurled to the Arctic breezes by Robert E. Peary when he discovered the North pole. On this historic date three lusty cheers were given by six human beings who stood atop the world. They were Commander Peary, his negro companion and assistant of many years, Matthew A. Henson, and four Eskimos, writes Lester A. Walton, in the New York World.

Peary is dead. The Eskimos may or may not be. No one in the confines of civilization knows. Only Henson is left to tell of the winning fight with nature in the land of ice and snow; of the successful dash for the earth's point farthest north over a trail of ever moving, drifting ice, mountainous ridges, often more than 100 feet high, treacherous thin ice and through open lanes of water. Henson now has a clerical position in the New York custom house.

"Sometimes when I think of all we went through it seems hardly possible," Matt Henson remarked as he talked on the momentary perils Peary and members of his party encountered before reaching the North pole. "We had one hair-raising experience after another and looked death squarely in the face more than once. Were Almost Exhausted."

"In our final dash for the pole our party consisted of Commander Peary, myself and our four Eskimo attendants. Captain Bartlett, after reaching 88 degrees north, was the last to be sent back to headquarters, which was on April 1. When he bade us goodbye I said to the commander: 'It looks as if we are the men ordained to unlock the doors that have held the mysteries of the Arctic for centuries.' His only reply was: 'Yes; I only wish I were in as good condition as you.'"

"On our last lap we were getting an average of four hours sleep out of twenty-four. On the last day we put in eighteen hours without a wink of sleep. We were almost exhausted. I felt I could not go another mile. We stopped and built the igloos. Commander Peary unloaded his sledge and took out his old silk flag. 'This, my boy,' he said to me, 'is to be the last and most northerly camp on earth. It will be named Camp Morris K. Jesup.' 'Can it be that we have come to the end of our trail?' I asked myself. With that thought in mind I temporarily forgot about the extreme cold. I glanced at the commander and saw that he was visibly affected. He fastened the silk flag to the staff and placed it on the top of his igloo. Then he said: 'Let's give three cheers to Old Glory, which we did with all the strength we could summon, the Eskimos joining in.'"

"We stayed 36 hours at the North pole. Four sets of observations were taken. On April 6, we had very little sleep as it was too cold to sleep. I remember it was on April 7, when Commander Peary gave orders to build a snow-shield to protect him from the drift of surface snow. I was certain he was about to take an observation. We handed him the pan of mercury and he lay flat on his stomach taking elevation and making notes. From the look on his face I was satisfied we had finally accomplished our mission. 29 Below at the Pole."

"I was in the act of congratulating him when the wind blew something in his eyes and he turned his face aside. Orders were given not to allow him to sleep more than four hours as he wanted to make another observation four miles away. I dropped off to sleep with the thermometer at 29 degrees below zero."

"Upon Commander Peary's return from his observation a few miles distant from our igloos, he said to me enthusiastically: 'We will put the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole.' This we did with a rim, unfurling Old Glory on top of a piece of ice. Then I knew full well history had been made for science and for America."

Peary gave his life in the interest of science, is the opinion of "Matt" Henson. "He is dead today because of the trip to the North pole. Some of the trials and tribulations met, not merely now and then, but continuously, are indescribable. When we reached the ship Roosevelt our change in physical appearance was startling. I looked in my glass, which reflected the face of an old wizened man. I left the United States weighing 150 pounds and returned tipping the scales at 110."

The Hensons were living at No. 117 East Eighth-fourth street, New York, in October, 1909, and when Henson walked into his house his wife did not know him and ordered him out. He had difficulty convincing her as to his identity. It was some time before he regained his former weight and his face lost the wrinkles and other distinguishing marks made by the ravages of Polar life.

Peary Carried on Sledge.
When Peary made his perilous trip of 413 miles from Cape Columbia to the North pole over an ice-covered ocean the other members of the party besides Henson were Prof. Donald B. MacMillan of Massachusetts, Capt. Robert Bartlett, Dr. John W. Goodsell, Prof. Marvin and George Borup, who was only twenty-one years old. Captain Bartlett and Doctor Good-sell, the first to start on the 413-mile trip, were followed by Henson and MacMillan. Peary and Marvin left Cape Columbia last. Henson's instructions were to proceed to Peary bay and solder the leaking cans of alcohol. This was February 15. He vividly remembers March 1, 1909, when a heavy gale of wind was blowing and there were not ten minutes during the day but what some parts of their body would not freeze. The wind was blowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour. Henson recalls how members of the party were delayed six days by the Big Lead, a stretch of water five miles wide. Having no boat they could not cross it. At the end of six days it froze over sufficiently for them to take off snow shoes and cross the ice "bear fashion" in order not to break through.

The return trip to Cape Columbia is referred to by Henson as one crowded with excitement and constant danger. Although Commander Peary's condition was such that he had to be carried on his sledge practically all the time, he was still the heart and head of the party. After seventeen days of suffering, both mental and physical, the six men's hearts were made glad by sight of land.

Learn of Cook's Claim.
The distance from Cape Columbia to Cape Sheridan where the steamer Roosevelt was anchored was ninety miles. It was April 25 when the ship was sighted. There was a great reunion when the boat was reached. In the midst of it news of Marvin's death was made known, casting a damper on the auspicious occasion.

Although eager to get back to civilization and broadcast the news of his great feat, Peary was unable to leave Cape Sheridan until July, as the Roosevelt was icebound and could not break through. The time was spent hunting musk oxen and reindeer. July 25, 1909, was a day of rejoicing, for the Roosevelt was able to extricate itself from its icy mooring and make some little headway by drifting. It was not, however, until August 4 that the ship reached open water and was able to sail under full steam. At Etah, North Greenland, the party learned of Doctor Cook's claims, that he had discovered the North pole, from two Eskimo boys. "Matt" Henson's diary on that date reads as follows:

"Mr. Harry Whitney came aboard with the boatswain and the cabin boy, who had been left here last fall on our way to Cape Sheridan. . . . Mr. Whitney is the gentleman who came up on the Erik last year and, at the last moment, decided to spend the winter with the natives. . . . I learn that Doctor Cook came over from Ellesmere land with his two boys and, in a confidential conversation with Mr. Whitney, made the statement that he had reached the North pole."

"Professor MacMillan and I have talked to his two boys and have learned there is no foundation in fact for such a statement and the captain and others of the expedition have questioned them. If they were out on the ice of the Arctic ocean it was only for a short distance, not more than twenty or twenty-five miles. The boys are positive in the statement and my own boys, Ootah and Ooqueah, have talked to them also and get the same replies."

"The commander and the rest of us are in the humor to regard Mr. Whitney as a person who has been hoaxed. We know Dr. Cook very well, also his reputation, and we know that he was never good for a hard day's work; in fact, he was not up to the average, and he is no hand at all in making the most of his resources. He probably has spun this yarn to Mr. Whitney and the boatswain to make himself look big to them."

Peary Party Sights Labrador.
The Peary party sighted Labrador September 4, and it was from Indian harbor that the commander flashed the message, "Stars and Stripes nailed to the North pole."

Peary is characterized by Henson as a most courageous man, whose dominant trait was persistently coupled with fortitude. The negro explorer tells with undisguised admiration of the manner in which the commander lost all the toes on both feet except the small one on the left foot in 1898. Discovery of the North pole was the culmination of seven unsuccessful attempts, says Henson. The eighth was the only one in which the commander and his assistant did not on several occasions face starvation. At times it was necessary to kill the dogs, eat some and feed the remainder to the other dogs.

Henson's first trip to the Arctic zone was in 1891, when he accompanied Peary to Greenland. "Before it was finally decided that I should go, I was instructed to see a Philadelphia physician and undergo an examination," said Henson. "My test was ninety-five. It was found that my respiration was slower, my pulse slower and my temperature one-tenth higher than normal. The doctor said I would be the longest liver in the party and his predictions came true."

Henson first went to work for Peary as a valet, accompanied him to the Panama canal where the latter's services were required as a civil engineer with rank of second lieutenant in the United States navy.

Henson was born on the Potomac in Charles county, Maryland, fifty-seven years ago.

Shortly after their return to the United States from their trip to the pole, Peary and Henson became slightly estranged. The commander objected to his assistant appearing on the lecture platform under the management of William A. Brady. "I was dead broke and had to get some

Union College
Talk at "Hi-Y"

Club Meeting Wednesday Evening—
Union Students Talk On Athletics
In Relation To College and Advantages of Small Colleges.

A regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club was held at the "Y" on Wednesday night. After a few business matters were attended to, President Vogt introduced Mr. Palmer, a student of Union College. Mr. Palmer spoke on athletics in relation to colleges and particularly in relation to Union.

Mr. Palmer opened with a story about fraternity brothers. Colgate was playing a baseball game and had on its team two fraternity brothers, one a second baseman, the other a center-fielder. There was also a man of the same fraternity on the rival team. The latter made a hit and, in trying to stretch it into a two bagger, spiked the second baseman, his frat brother. The second baseman became wrathful and was on the point of striking the fellow who spiked him, when the center-fielder rushed up and said, "Don't hit the dirty bum, he's a brother."

Mr. Palmer said that he would tell a little of the athletic policy at Union. This policy is upheld by all the students. One thing that Union requires of its athletes is that they must act and be gentlemen on the athletic field as well as in the lecture halls or dormitories. To be a gentleman on the athletic field one must refrain from cursing and fighting and must be generous to his opponents at all times. By doing the above mentioned things, the athlete and the team as a whole get a lot further than by the bulldozing methods, which have been heretofore prevalent. There is much more satisfaction in playing the game in the right way and losing, than in playing dirty and winning.

Because the game is played fairly does not mean that the game is not played hard. It is played hard, but also played fair.

It is the general opinion that football coaches are hard-boiled, that they resort to cursing at the players to make them do their utmost. But this is untrue in most cases and is untrue in the case of Union. The football coach there is Perry Lairy. He is a gentleman and runs his team along a psychological line with the aid of his personality. He was a captain in the army over in France, is a lawyer and a Phi Beta Kappa man. His system has worked well. He does not allow his men to mix with their opponents on the campus before the game. His rule is to "play fair and beat 'em square." He always tells his men to give the best they've got because there are more on the bench.

Mr. Palmer then spoke of the eligibility rules at Union. They are very strict because Dr. Richmond, the head of the college, is a leader in a movement to do away with the hitting of tramp athletes.

Mr. Palmer also gave a short resume of the football and basketball seasons, both of which were quite successful.

President Vogt then introduced Mr. Wright, who accompanied Mr. Palmer. Mr. Wright said that he represented the intelligence. He told of the benefits of a college education.

A big question for anyone going to college is to pick out a suitable college. Mr. Wright said that a small college has many advantages. By a small college is meant one under 1,000 students. In a small college a person gets to know his fellow students better, while in a large college a person knows a few of these people in his classes and his fraternity brothers. Mr. Wright said that out of the 450 pupils at Union he knew 300 well enough to call them by their first names. In a small college a person gets into personal touch with his instructors. He is more under their personal supervision and is apt to do better work for that reason.

There is also a better opportunity for the individual who wishes to do something in athletics, or debating, or any other activity. His chances are just 10 times greater in a small school than in a large one.

Mr. Wright next spoke of the college spirit. He said that college spirit is a great thing and that college spirit in a small college is better than in a large college.

Then Mr. Wright told of the different courses which Union College offers. The electrical engineering course in conjunction with the G. E. gives a great opportunity, also the civil engineering course in conjunction with the American Locomotive Works. The A. B. course leads to the Albany school. There is a pre-medical course which is finished at the Albany Medical College.

Mr. Wright said that the cost of a college education is not great and that anyone who has the will to go can go and will get through.

President Vogt then appointed a nominating committee to put up men to run for the various offices. The meeting then adjourned.

SOMETHING OLD AND SOMETHING BLUE.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue. The old adage is as good today as ever and the something blue, more important than ever and easier of accomplishment. Something old means of course the antique fabrics and something blue is of course powder blue, fashion's choice of spring colors. The June bride will not have to resort to a blue garter for her talisman. Her smart blue topcoat will be an omen of blue skies and its cloth will be no less azure. Madonna blue, some call the lovely shade which is so much in evidence for topcoats worn at southern resorts this winter. Powder blue is another interpretation. Parrish blue a name graphically descriptive to those who know the blue of a Parrish picture.

For town wear there are deeper blues, for evening and of course for accessories, porcelain blues and myriads of tones suitable for myriads of types of womenkind. Among which might be mentioned the blue Goblin tapestry. Tapestry weaves as well as tapestry colorings find favor just now and while one's choice of bags may have moved from heads to embroidery the beautiful fine headed tapestry bags handsomely mounted are still a valued possession.

Polonium is a metallic element discovered in 1898 by Mme. Curie while studying the radioactivity of various minerals. It is closely related to bismuth. It emits only alpha rays and is perhaps identical with radium F. It was named polonium from Polonia, the Latin name of Poland.

FEWER COAL MINERS KILLED DURING 1923

Reports to Bureau of Mines Show 2,452 Lost Lives.

Washington.—Reports made by the various state mine inspectors to the United States Department of the Interior, through the bureau of mines, show that 2,452 men were killed by accidents at coal mines in the United States in 1923. Of these fatalities 2,240 occurred as the results of accidents underground, 46 were due to shaft accidents and 157 to accidents in and around surface plants. The production of coal during the year was 641,476,000 tons; hence the fatality rate for the year was 3.82 per million tons, as compared with 4.15 for 1922. Non-fatal accidents number approximately 200,000 per year.

This reduction of eight per cent in the fatal accident rate per million tons of coal produced in 1923 is equivalent to the saving of 210 lives, the bureau of mines points out, and had the fatality rate of 1922 continued during the last year the number of lives lost would have been 210 more than actually were lost during 1923.

Means Big Loss in Coal.

Not only was there a net reduction in the fatality rate from all causes combined, but each of the main causes of coal-mine fatalities also showed a decline. Falls of roof and coal, which generally account for nearly half of all deaths in coal mines, were responsible for 1,158 fatalities in 1923, which represents a rate of 1.81 per million tons, as compared with 1.90 in 1922. Haulage accidents underground usually cause about 18 per cent of all fatalities, and the reports for 1923 show that 413 deaths were due to this cause, indicating a rate of 0.64 per million tons, as against 0.72 for the previous year.

Gas and dust explosions killed 372 men, the fatality rate being 0.58; the previous year's rate was 0.65. Seventy-five deaths were due to electricity, for which class of accidents the fatality rate per million tons was 0.12, as compared with 0.16 the year before. Powder and other explosives caused 114 deaths, representing a rate of 0.18, as compared with 0.19 for 1922.

Non-fatal injuries occurring in the coal mines number approximately 200,000 per year and represent a total coal tonnage loss valued at about $30,000,000. The average mine accident entailing only temporary disability means a loss of production of approximately 60 tons of coal, it is estimated. It is calculated that each accident of this nature results in a time loss to the worker of 15 days. With the daily output of coal per man figured at four tons, and with coal valued at $3.25 per ton at the mine, the average value lost tonnage for each accident entailing temporary disability is $195. The time and monetary loss per accident would, of course, be increased if accidents entailing permanent disability or death were included in the tabulation.

Few Accidents Are Fatal.

The non-fatal reports were furnished the bureau of mines during 1922 by the operators of 200 coal mines, who have co-operated with the bureau in a special study of mine accidents by furnishing a separate report of each accident disabling an employee for more than the remainder of the shift. In all, a study of more than 2,000 coal mine accidents was made.

The bureau found that about two per cent of coal mine accidents result fatally. Deaths, permanent total disabilities and permanent partial disabilities constitute less than five per cent of all mine accidents, while disabilities of a temporary nature account for 95 per cent of mine accidents.

In bituminous mines, fall of roof and slide, the bureau of mines says, are responsible for 29 per cent of all temporary injuries and 35 per cent of all time lost by underground workers. Injuries from this cause average 21 days' loss of time per man injured.

Mine haulage was found to be responsible for 28 per cent of all temporary injuries and 30 per cent of all time lost. Injuries from this cause average 19 days' loss of time per man injured.

Mine explosions and fires were found to be responsible for three-tenths of one per cent of all temporary injuries and slightly less than that percentage of all time lost. Injuries from this cause average 12 days' loss of time per man injured.

Anti-Noise Campaign Is Started at Chicago

Chicago.—Health Commissioner Rundenen is leading 100 inspectors in an anti-noise campaign. These are the noise makers listed for squelching: "The saxophone player who begins his concert when people should be sleeping." "The ragtime player who feels it necessary to keep the world wide awake." "The phonograph player who makes himself a nuisance late at night." "The radio fan who turns on the horn at unseemly hours." "Early morning street car gongs." "The annoying locomotive whistle." "The automobile horn which screeches for the heat girl to hurry."

BILLIE BROWNIE'S VISIT

"I don't suppose," said Billie Brownie, when he had arrived back some and had joined the other Brownies, "that anyone has any idea how often Billie Brownie has had said to him by his family and his Fairyland friends."

"Now, Billie, give an account of where you have been and what you have seen."

"I know that when one member of a family comes home from a trip or a party the others will say."

"Now give us an account of what you saw and who were there and what they had on and what they had to eat."

"Well, it is the same way here. You have just asked me to give an account of my last trip. For I am asked too, to give an account of where I have been and what I have seen and what was worn and all such things."

"We want to hear all the news from the last trip, Billie," the Brownies said.

And Billie Brownie gave his brother a long and said:

"Let us hear the news, Billie."

"Well, I had a short talk with a wolf in a zoo," said Billie. "He said he had just heard the expression, 'Keeping the wolf from the door.'"

"He said he understood that it meant people must try to work hard" enough so they would not be hungry, but would always have enough money with which to buy food.

A Short Talk With a Wolf.

"He said he was flattered to think they thought of a wolf as being a dangerous creature in every sort of a way."

"But I told him I didn't think it was much of a compliment."

"However," as he said, he was the one to be complimented or angry."

"He wore a splendid fur costume and really looked handsome and in the best of health."

"Then I saw some hens upon the doorsteps of a house and upon low branches of bushes and trees trying to keep the rain off them, for it was raining in that part of the country."

"The cows looked quite wet and as though they had become so wet they didn't care about the rain any more."

"And one of them said to me: 'I don't know whether it is better to be wet, or to be dry and to spend one's time whisking the flies away from my tail.'"

"It is a matter I have not yet decided."

"I saw some cows with big horns and some wearing a kind of purple-black costume. Perhaps I should say that the costumes were their own skin!"

"Then I saw a calf reaching his front foot out and up over his eye and wiping his eye."

"That was a funny enough sight!"

"And then he reached way back with his left hind leg and gave his right hind leg a little rubbing."

"He was quite clever, I thought, the way he could reach about over himself, if that is the way I may speak."

"You may speak that way," said the Brownies. "We are not going to be particular as to the way you describe things and whether you are so correct in your speech as long as we hear all your news."

"Good," said Billie. "Then I may continue without worrying."

"I saw many other cows sitting, some with their front feet crossed in front of them and they would sometimes look at passing motors and sometimes they would not pay attention."

"Some of the cows looked at me and didn't speak and some made little moo sounds which I thought quite sweet."

"Then I saw moss growing in the cracks of a funny old, old stone house which was right up close to another stone house—so close that you could hardly tell there were two houses."

"And I was told these houses were very, very old and that the moss felt so comfortable there, and that the houses liked the moss for it made them appear more interesting looking."

"Oh, I didn't see anything you would call startling, but yet there is something interesting about all eight—that is, to Billie Brownie!"

"It Wouldn't Bother Him"

A Japanese boy came to the home of a minister in Los Angeles recently and applied for a position. Now, it happened that the household was already well supplied with servants, so the minister's wife said: "I am sorry, but we really haven't enough work to keep another boy busy."

"Madam," said the Oriental politely, "I am sure that you must have. You may not know what a little bit of work it takes to keep me employed."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

It is not of course, the kitchen cabinet, but the kitchen itself, that is the subject of this article. The kitchen is the heart of the home, and it is the place where the most of the family life is lived. It is the place where the food is prepared, and where the family gathers together. It is the place where the mother of the family spends most of her time, and where she does most of her work. It is the place where the children play, and where they learn the ways of life. It is the place where the father of the family sits, and where he reads the paper, and where he talks with his family. It is the place where the family life is lived, and where the family is united. It is the place where the family finds comfort and happiness, and where they find the love and care that is so necessary to life. It is the place where the family finds the warmth and the light of home, and where they find the peace and the quiet that is so necessary to life. It is the place where the family finds the joy and the pleasure of life, and where they find the meaning and the purpose of life. It is the place where the family finds the love and the care that is so necessary to life, and where they find the warmth and the light of home, and where they find the peace and the quiet that is so necessary to life. It is the place where the family finds the joy and the pleasure of life, and where they find the meaning and the purpose of life.

PICK UP MEALS

In all families there are times when meals cannot be planned for or sudden emergencies call for hurried meals. It is a wise housewife who keeps on hand a number of soups of various kinds, soup stock, beef extract or bouillon cubes to be used in numberless ways. A chicken soup of the canned variety may be used with a slight thickening and addition of cream poured over hot toast well buttered, making a fine luncheon or supper dish.

For stuffing green peppers to bake, use some form of good soup with bread crumbs, draining off the thin part of the soup and using for a sauce to serve with the peppers if so desired.

Fricassee Eggs.—Take six hard-boiled eggs cut crosswise into four thick slices, one cupful of good stock, made from beef or canned consommé, one teaspoonful of butter, one small onion finely minced, one tablespoonful of minced parsley, two teaspoonfuls of flour, salt and pepper to taste. Cook the onion in the butter, stir in the flour, and when it bubbles add the stock. When it is boiling hot, lay in the eggs gently, not to break them. Cook three or four minutes, season to taste and serve sprinkled with parsley. Serve on strips of fried bread.

Eggs in Nest.—Cut rounds of bread heap on the white of egg beaten stiff and drop the egg yolk in the white. Dot with butter, season well and place in oven to set the egg. The seasoning and butter may be added as it is taken from the oven.

Scrambled Eggs.—Pour a cupful of rich milk into a saucepan, add as many eggs as are needed, stir and cook until the eggs are set and well broken. Season with salt and pepper, adding a generous spoonful of butter. Serve very hot with fried bacon.

HIKES 20 MILES TO ASK PRAYER FOR HIS MATE

Woodcutter Makes Long Trip to Get Medicine for Injured Companion.

A man in the garb of a woodcutter walked up the aisle to the tiny Gospel chapel on South street, Ballston Spa, near Schenectady, N. Y., and whispered to the minister, who was leading his congregation in prayer.

The clergyman told his people the stranger had begged their prayers. "He walked 20 miles on snowshoes to get aid for a man injured in the woods," the leader said. "Now he asks that we petition God to give him strength to get back with the medicine he has just obtained from Doctor Post. His trail is through the snow-covered country to Lake Desolation."

The minister then told an epic of the woods. During the worst of a storm recently, Aaron Feulner drawing logs on Glass Factory mountain, eight miles from the lake, was felled by a tree. No roads were open. He was taken to a woodcutter's shanty and Rudolph Bernovich set out on snowshoes for Ballston Spa, the nearest settlement where medical help could be found.

By evening he was at a doctor's door. Describing the injuries of the man, who was unconscious with a fractured skull, he was instructed by the physician, who gave him medicine, which he hoped would ease the sufferer until the roads were broken for passage of a sleigh. Later Doctor Post was told by telephone that the patient was no better. He advised an effort to bring him out of the woods.

Logging teams were hitched and the heavy horses broke open the drifted mountain roads. A sleigh followed, bearing Feulner in blankets. The faith of the logger may be rewarded. Feulner, while severely hurt, has a chance.

A Better Clay

White, refined—amazingly effective

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I owe my youthful beauty largely to a super-clay, perfected by French experts.

The first clays I used were crude and muddy, as many clays are still. They multiplied my beauty. The clay I now use has been perfected by years of scientific study. It is white, refined and dainty. The results it brings are amazing, compared with old-type clays.

Now, after 40 years as a stage star, I still look a girl of 19.

Every woman's duty. The use of clay is every woman's duty to herself. No girl can look as best without it, no woman can keep her youth.

Look about you. Note the wonderful complexion due to clay. The others who look like daughters. Clay parades the skin of all that are the cause of salivaceous, blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is that rosy afterglow which so amazes and delights.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles. Many women with one application seem to drop ten years. No woman can afford to miss the benefits of clay.

Manifest effects.

But my new-type clay does vastly more than others. I call it my White Youth Clay. And I have arranged so all who wish may use it.

Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay is now supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

I can do no woman a greater kindness than to urge her to use this clay. Go try it. See the new complexion that it brings. If lines have come, watch them disappear. You will ever thank me for telling you about it. Edna Wallace Hopper, 336 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

NEW COAL YEAR STARTS UNDER GOOD CONDITIONS

Continuous Supply Assured Until 1925 And Prices Tend Downward, Palen Tells Kiwanis.

USE MORE BUCKWHEAT TO MAKE OTHER SIZES CHEAPER

Oil Heat More Costly Now and Price Tendency is Upward.

Edgar N. Palen, of the firm of Palen and Bouton, retail coal dealers, gave a vocational talk at this week's Kiwanis Club luncheon, in which he said:

The coal year starts on April 1st, and just now I may be able to give you information that is both interesting and valuable.

The contract between the mine owners and miners runs until August 1st, 1925, so that there should be a continuous and ample supply of coal during that time.

You have noticed by the papers that the price of chestnut, stove and egg coal is $12.75 with a cash discount of 40c per ton.

The miners cannot produce enough coal during the fall and winter months to supply the needs. It is vital that there be a continuous movement of coal throughout the year. In the last 20 years those who have put in their coal during the spring and summer months have saved money and been sure of their heat.

The great problem before the producer of anthracite or hard coal is to market the small sizes; that is the buckwheats, also known as buckwheat, rice and barley. Thirty-five per cent of the production is these small sizes. They have to be sold in competition with soft coal for industrial use, and often for less than the cost of production, and therefore they do not carry their proportionate share of costs. If a better market could be found for buckwheat it would help to bring down the price of chestnut, stove and egg. Buckwheat is burned in Spencer and Molby heaters. There have been more improvements in heating systems in the last five years than in the last 25 years. Add thermostat control to the recent improvements and you have almost automatic heat. You know this is a lazy and luxury loving age—all dirt and all work are to be avoided and the word automatic is the big word. Soon perhaps they'll be feeding us pre-digested food through a spout, but when that time comes the Kiwanis Club will go out of business.

I want to make this definite suggestion: Make room for and put in a small amount of pea or buckwheat coal. By putting on your fire a light covering of small coal, you fill up the cracks, you cut down the draft somewhat, but it will help to burn up cleaner your larger coal. If your fire is low or nearly out, a fine covering of small coal will help to bring it back more quickly. Bank your fire at night with a smaller coal, particularly in spring and fall; you'll get better results and save money.

There is considerable agitation about oil. It is a dirty subject, but I want you to have some facts about it.

There are about 1200 oil burners on the market. The prices run from $50 to $1500 with an average cost around $600; to install oil equipment would correspond in cost to 2 or 3 years' supply of coal. 8 or 12c oil corresponds in price to 18 and 20 per ton coal. Each cent increase in the price of oil is equal to $2 more per ton to the price of coal.

Don't let anyone change from coal to oil with the expectation of it being cheaper. The trend of hard coal prices is down. The trend of oil prices is up.

Prof. Miller of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, says that in view of the uncertainty of the supply of fuel oil it would be unwise for any consumer to change from coal to oil.

A prominent geologist says we are now in the presence of a major upswing in the prices of crude petroleum and its derivatives.

The life of an oil field is 10 to 15 years. Of the known oil fields in the U. S. they are 42 per cent worked out. An authority says that there is not an oil pool in the U. S. which has not passed the peak of its production. George Otis Smith, chief of the U. S. Geological Survey, has issued a warning against a shortage of oil in the not distant future, and points out that commercial and industrial interests should take immediate steps to protect themselves from an ultimate oil shortage.

Let the coal dealer add a truck and a tank to his present equipment and he's in the oil business.

The oil burners have not been perfected. They cost a lot to install. There is a question as to their safety. As the above facts indicate the price of oil is tending upward, therefore, think twice or three times before changing your heat from coal to oil. It was announced that W. P. Henkel, traffic manager in Kingston for the New York Telephone Company, and F. F. Gardner of the Frederick Brick Company, have been elected to membership.

The Swarthmore Chautauqua will be here the week of August 4. The Kiwanis Club to use its share of the proceeds for charitable work here.

Truth Stranger Than Fiction

In Uncle Sam's great coal laboratory at Pittsburgh, Pa., means have been found recently to test explosive dangers of far distant coal mines. The test is made with coal-dust collected at the mine and forwarded to Pittsburgh. When the dust is tested in the apparatus shown in the illustration, the specialists can tell the mine owners just what precautions should be taken to prevent explosion.

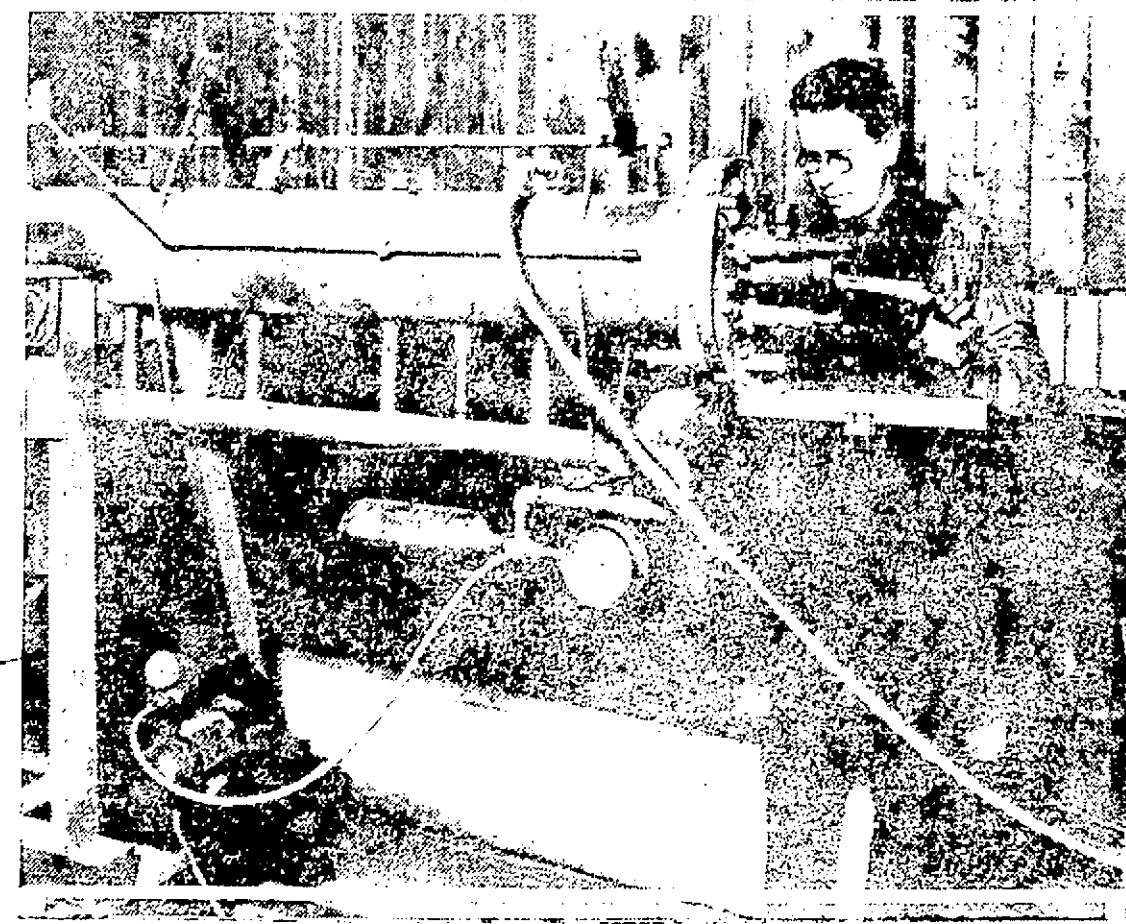

Thus a coal mine operator in West Virginia, for instance, can forward a quantity of dust from his mine to the laboratory and learn within a short time what sort of lamps and other working apparatus are better adapted to his operation.

The dust to be tested is stored in little disks in the upright tubes connecting the large horizontal gallery or tube with the smaller pipe. Under air pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch, the dust is held in a state of suspension in the air of the large tube. At the proper moment the operator pulls the trigger of a rifle which ignites a small quantity of powder at the end of the tube. The exploding powder then explodes the coal dust as it would happen in a coal mine. Along the interior of the tube are placed, at measured intervals, tiny bits of gun-cotton which are exploded by the flame of the coal dust explosion. The explosion or non-explosion of the gun-cotton tells the operator, upon examination afterward, how far the flame of the coal dust extended down the tube.

And that is what he wants to know. It is his aim the degree of the danger in air-charged with that kind of dust. A long flame, of course, means much danger; a short one, less.

In America today there are proportionately more single women than in colonial times. This fact is believed to be due to the change in the social status of unmarried women as well as to the increased opportunities offered them for self-support.

No One Can Do Miracles

The science of manufacturing is fairly exact. In the eight great Walk-Over Shoe factories every labor and money-saving device that science has produced is used to make good shoes at prices as low as possible. A modern factory is more economical than an old one. A large factory can reduce expense as a small one can not. An efficient factory can make shoes at a lower cost than one not efficient. The Walk-Over factories are modern, large and efficient.

Mary Succeeds on Main Street

By LAURA MILLER

SHEKELS VS. PSYCHOLOGY

A famous psychologist once told me the difference between a woman's and man's mind.

"Throughout the ages," he explained, "man measured success by the property he could amass in one form or another. Woman had to gain the approval of a man. His surplus provided for both her physical and spiritual needs."

These two traits run deep. Woman is more conventional that is, more interested in community approval than man. However advanced a feminist, she usually gains pleasure from intangible approval rewards while a man on the same job counts the cash.

Pure theory? Perhaps. Yet in hundreds of letters from women in the working world, the intangible factors do seem to make for contentment. The truth seems to be that these women just haven't bothered to be materially "successful," because they're happy in their work.

This little letter is a case in point. Is Julia Wossman a success or not? Her name was sent by a member of the Louisiana board of health, who thought of her as a successful force in her town. What do you think?

"Dear Mrs. Miller: "I covet very much the honor of being written up as a woman who has succeeded on 'Main Street', but such a write-up about me wouldn't be at all according to the facts in my career. It would be pure fiction."

"I am principal of an elementary school of twelve teachers, drawing a salary of only $1,500 a year. I'm a very obscure person, living on a 'side street' in a sweet, sleepy old Southern town."

"If you had asked for a story of some one who has been happy in a small town, I could fit into your plan. I meddle into nearly everything that happens in my little community, fail more often than I succeed, but enjoy the contact meddling gives me."

"Please, when you finish your plan of writing about women who have succeeded in small towns turn to the 'needles in the haystacks.' I shall be so glad to be used."

"Sincerely yours,
(Signed) "JULIA C. WOSSMAN."

Radiator Plays Lullaby

They recently installed their new baby in a room in their apartment which formerly had been the guest chamber and so far they are delighted with a hitherto unrealized attraction which the room possessed, says the New York Sun and Globe. Every night about 10:30 just after the baby has been fed and should settle down for the night, the radiator commences to beat out a tattoo that has had the effect of acting as a lullaby to the baby. Before it ceases he has fallen asleep, but their joy is tempered somewhat by the fear that some night, more wakeful than usual, he will not have lapsed into unconsciousness before the radiator stops its tune and the problem will then be what substitute to give him.

ROYAL PRINCESS IN LOVE TRIANGLE.

CROWN PRINCE LEOPOLD, PRINCESS MAFAIDA & PRINCE NICHOLAS

The love of Prince Nicholas, son of the King and Queen of Rumania, for Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, threatens to influence the destinies of three nations. King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Benito Mussolini are anxious to bring about a rapprochement between Italy and Rumania through the proposed marriage of Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium, and Princess Mafalda. But that royal little lady, having a will of her own, can't see it at all. She wants the whole world in general and papa in particular to know that she loves only Prince Nicholas, who is now a midshipman on the British cruiser Benbow, and that she will marry him, or not at all. It is even reported in Rome that she has threatened to kill herself if forced into an unwilling marriage with Leopold.

were unable to read and write since then 35.8 per cent of those admitted to citizenship are absolutely illiterate. With their right suffrage, the women of today can elect to their senators and representatives against this admission to citizenship of the illiterate and uneducated. The judge went on to show that the early Hollanders only 4-10 per cent were illiterate; of the Scotch but 7-10 of one per cent could read or write; of the English but 1 per cent were illiterate, etc. With the present immigration the speaker pointed out with 34.7 per cent illiterate from Roumania and ended with 100 per cent of illiterates from Italy and Portugal. Yet these people are for our most responsible bodies for the levying of taxes. While the judge admitted that illiteracy was not always a lack of intelligence, still it does show a lack of desire to learn, an absence of aspiration.

Thousands of Lusane, and there is a still graver and more serious phase of the matter as shown by Judge Clearwater. It is, that in the insane hospitals of this state, for instance, 50 per cent of the inmates are of this later immigration, people who were born abroad. This means that southern Europe and western Asia are dumping their insane or insane parentage into this country. Yet in the northwest, especially, there is actually opposition to legislation against this condition of things because so large a percentage of the constituents of the senators and representatives of those states are people of the present immigrant classes.

The older immigrants had aspirations and ambitions to own their own homes, to educate their children, to get their financial obligations and pay their debts and taxes. They had come to this country to stay and had no intention of flocking back to the land from which they came. We do find it so today. Where the earlier immigrants who cheated, took unfair advantages were shunned and considered as outcasts, today there are too many such to be outcast and shunned. They make no impression. At the present time, in this country there are 40,000 newspapers printed in foreign languages having millions of readers. While many of them are patriotic many more of them are what we call "Red." Only day before yesterday, Judge Clearwater reminded his hearers 34 young people were expelled from one of our great universities, not because they were yet "Red," but because they were "Pink," that it was evident they soon would reach the "Red" stage. They had organized to denounce the constitution of the United States.

Settle in Cities.
Prior to 1880, the majority of immigration tended westward and took up agriculture, owning their own farms and educating their children. Today many of the strongest men of our time are their descendants. But within the last ten years 20 per cent of the immigration has gone to Massachusetts; 23 per cent to Connecticut; 27 per cent to Rhode Island; 25 per cent to New York; 22 per cent to Pennsylvania and 35 per cent to New Jersey, and all to the larger cities of those states. These immigrants have done nothing for agriculture, but they have disrupted the labor markets, where they have settled.

Judge Clearwater stated that in this time, the man who worked twelve or fourteen hours a day and received pay therefor was counted an exemplary citizen who would get on. If he worked overtime and was paid for it he was considered forehanded. Today he can't do such a thing without being expelled from some labor union. A good bricklayer is a skilled workman, and used to take pride in seeing how many bricks he could lay in a day. Today the union prescribes how many bricks he shall lay in a day. The time has been, according to the judge, when any man could give expression to any opinion not sacrilegious or revolutionary but today if he expresses the slightest criticism against certain conditions he is almost an outcast.

Foreign Born Generally Vote.

"Today," said Judge Clearwater, "only two United States senators have had the courage to denounce the scum and defamations of the caldron at Washington and they are a senator from New York and a senator from Pennsylvania. Yet the evidence being heard and broadcast would not be received by justice of any court. And it is our later immigrants who are electing our senators of today. The judge added that the women of these people vote, while the women of the D. A. R. organizations, perhaps the women before him do not vote, for the most part. They intend to; may next year, or if their nearest neighbor or best friend does. They do not go to the polls with their husbands because the latter go too early or too late or at an inconvenient season. Not so the women of the immigrant peoples. 'We hear a great deal about the United States being a melting pot,' said Judge Clearwater. 'That is an irrelevant metaphor. For instead of being a melting pot it is a dissolvent, failing to coalesce the many elements therein.'

Not a Melting Pot.

The speaker said he could suggest a specific way in which the women of today could work toward good government. They could do as he the president of several organizations in our state had done for those organizations, ask of our senators and representatives that any immigration bill adopted by our legislature be predicated upon the census of 1890, only ten years after the high peak of our best immigration, and not on the present census, as the Bolsheviks and others of their ilk are asking. If the women cared to write a letter to their senator or representative in the interest of such action, Judge Clearwater said he would be glad to dictate the proper phraseology to the Chapter for such a letter.

After due expression had been given of the appreciation of Judge Clearwater's able and valuable address, his offer of dictating a letter was accepted, and it was voted that the following letter be sent to both the Senate and House Committee on immigration at Washington, D. C.

Letter To Congress.

Gentlemen:
The two-hundred members of Wiltyvek Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Kingston, Ulster county, New York, respectfully request that any immigration bill adopted by Congress, be predicated upon the census of 1890.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) by the Regent and the Secretary of the Chapter.
Judge Clearwater also said that individual letters written by the members of the Chapter would also have added weight for good.

The afternoon's program closed with two additional piano selections. Miss Schwab played the Prelude in G Minor by Rachmaninoff with splendid spirit and a Serenade (Scandinavian, and therefore very appropriate) by Olsen with exceptional grace and finesse.

During the social hour that followed, Mrs. Walter N. Gill and Mrs. William R. Anderson acted as the hostesses.

No Picnic for Her

A woman with five children entered a car. She bustled herself seating them. A benevolent old gentleman rose and gave her his seat.

"Are those all your children, madam?" he asked, "or is it a picnic?" "They're all mine," snapped the woman, "and it's no picnic."

That Ended It

Two women were quarreling about ages. At last, as if to end the dispute, one of them turned away and said in a very conciliatory tone:

"Let us not quarrel any more. I, at least, have not the heart to do it. I never knew who my mother was. She deserted me when I was a baby, and who knows but that you may have been that heartless parent?"

Lost Diamonds From Teeth

His dentist "misappropriated" three diamonds set in the bridgework of his teeth which he had worn for thirteen years. Tom Cheek, negro politician of West Oakland, testified in his suit to recover the cost of the jewels from a dentist.

Cheek said he had the dentist remove the bridgework containing the three stones and left it with the dentist to be repaired. When he returned to the dentist's office to get the bridge, Cheek said, the diamonds had been removed. The dentist asserted there were no diamonds in the bridgework left with him.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Milkmaid of the Arctic

Teckla, a girl just over from northern Europe, who is being Americanized by the domestic service route, is having a rough passage in her first few weeks in a kitchen of one of the Boston suburbs, says the Boston Globe. She cannot cook and she is not used to American methods of housekeeping. When finally her mistress asked in exasperation the other day:

"Teckla, is there anything you can do?" "Yes, missus," she replied, in all sweetness and assurance, "I can milk a reindeer."

CHIEF FIGURES IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

Below: GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM & AL. SMITH.

The name of Secretary of War John W. Weeks was dragged into the Senatorial investigation into the Department of Justice by the charge of Captain H. L. Scaife, former department agent, that a clear case of war fraud against the Standard Aircraft Company, owned by Mitsui & Co., of Japan, was never prosecuted. Scaife asserts the belief that the personal influence of former Secretary George W. Wickersham was responsible, though Mr. Wickersham, practicing law in New York, indignantly denied the charge. The lot of an unofficial observer to the League of Nations is so difficult that America should enter the League or send no "observers," Norman H. Davis, Under Secretary of State in the Wilson Administration, declared in New York after settling the Memei dispute for the League. Governor Al Smith, of New York, led William Gibbs McAdoo for delegates to the National Democratic convention from Wisconsin.

Asks Methodist Daily Papers

Poughkeepsie District's Petition
Startles New York Conference—
Electing Delegates to Springfield Conference.

The New York Methodist Conference, which is holding its 125th annual session in Calvary Church, 129th street and Seventh avenue, Thursday received a petition from the Poughkeepsie District that the conference memorialize the general conference, to be held at Springfield, Mass., next month, to establish Methodist daily newspapers in three of the largest cities in the United States.

The petition suggests that should the undertaking seem too great for the Methodist Church, it seek to secure the cooperation of other denominations. It declares the proposed papers, which would not be published on Sunday, should be "a suitable and satisfactory mouthpiece for the Protestantism of our whole country."

An argument is that as the Christian Scientists' daily has been a marked success, why not Methodist dailies in three great centers? The Poughkeepsie district also requested that this conference overture the general conference to re-organize the church board so as to eliminate many secretarial positions, that these secretaries ask for pastoral appointments, and that the salaries, traveling and office expenses of these secretaries saved be devoted to foreign missions.

So revolutionary were these and most of the other changes proposed that many of the conference members gasped when the paper was read by the Rev. James J. Henry of Trinity Church, Poughkeepsie. It was signed by Mr. Henry, the Rev. G. Franklin Snyder of Chatham, the Rev. James H. Bennett of Hudson, the Rev. Herbert Hazzard of Brewster and the Rev. Harold H. Clements of Hartsville. Action will be taken later.

Today the clergymen will elect six clergymen as delegates to the Springfield conference, and the Laymen's Association will meet in the Madison Avenue Church at 16th street, to elect six laymen to the conference.
The report of the Rev. Dr. G. W. Gorton, superintendent of the Kingston District, will be found in another column.

Rat Fleas

Although plague is spread by the bite of rat fleas that have formerly fed on the blood of a plague-infected person or animal, not every species of flea performs this office. It has been found that one species of rat flea is apparently responsible for most of the outbreaks of pestilence, at least in India where it is endemic. The geographical distribution of the disease varies there with that of the flea Xenopsylla cheopis, while other species of rat fleas predominate where plague is uncommon.

New York, April 4. The stock market was steady at the opening today. Business of railroad shares again featured the trading. Industrials were dull but generally steady.

With the exception of the railroads, which continued their advance, forenoon trading was dull and listless. The only displaced conspicuous straddlers, the major equipments and industrials, although steady, showed an easing tendency.

Tavern of the Seas

Cape Town is popularly known among maritime men as "The Tavern of the Seas," principally because it is the harbor of many strange craft—probably more than any other port so far off the transoceanic paths. Recently a tiny craft arrived after a voyage of 17,000 miles. It was only a 27-ton yacht and was manned by three Danes.

No Wonder Washington U. Has Strong Varsity Crews

While eastern varsity crews are pulling oars in the gym tank and working on the deadly grind of the "rowing machine," the University of Washington sweepers, national champions in 1923, row all the year around on Lake Union at Seattle. From the crews shown here, Coach "Rusty" Callow hopes not only to produce another set of national winners at Poughkeepsie next June, but a crew which will fitly represent America at the Olympic games in Europe.

Jack Britton to Try Again in Fight Game

At the age of thirty-nine years Jack Britton, former world's champion welterweight, is essaying another comeback. For years Jack was cock of the walk among the welters and, like Bob Fitzsimmons, did not get into his own until he was well along in his ring career. Jack has always lived a temperate life and that probably is responsible now for his remarkably good condition and ability to travel with the best of them. He was not knocked out when he lost his title, but merely outpointed by a young and husky welterweight—Mike Walker.

FITZSIMMONS WAS POORLY PAID BOXER

Great Champion Made Little Money Out of Crown.

The purses middleweight champions receive for their services nowadays are enough to make the late Bob Fitzsimmons turn over in his grave. Johnny Wilson was guaranteed $40,000 when he fought Larry Greb for the championship. Greb was so eager to get a crack at the title that he accepted the small sum of $2,500 for his end. The Pittsburgh "Windmill" wanted the championship and won it. Tex Rickard was forced to pay Greb $25,000 to defend his title against Wilson in a return engagement in Madison Square Garden recently. Wilson, it is said, received $10,000.

Fitzsimmons, the greatest fighter of his weight the ring ever produced, earned only $20,000 during the time he held the middleweight crown. The Cornish man received only $7,000 when he won the title from the original Jack Dempsey. "The Nonpareil," and $3,000 for beating Jim Hall. He was to receive $10,000 for knocking out Dan Creighton, but it is said that the promoters informed him out of $10,000.

Fitz's earnings as a heavyweight were rather meager, too. He gambled with Dan Stuart, promoter of his fight with Jim Corbett, and received about $5,000 for his end. Bob was paid $10,000 for his two battles with Peter Maher, $35,000 for two bouts with Jim Jeffries and about $20,000 for knocking out Gus Roblin and Tom Sharkey. This is merely present money compared to the sums paid present day heavies.

Larry Fitz was paid $150,000 for his fight with Dempsey last September and will receive close to $200,000 for a return bout this summer, yet the Argentine would not have made a first-class sparring partner for old "Rudy" Robert. And what Fitz would have done to our present crop of middleweights would be nothing short of criminal. Poor old Fitz! He fought 20 years ahead of his time.

Billiard Champion Smith Surprises English Fans

It is almost impossible to gauge the limit of the capabilities of Willie Smith, the professional billiard champion of Darlington, England, declare the keenest critics of the game abroad. Every one thought the champion was overstepping the mark in conceding 6,000 in 18,000 points to young Davis, but he has shown that such a handicap was well within his power to grant. Especially in one session did Smith astonish followers of the sport when he made 730 points, his required number for that night, in an hour, his opponent meanwhile running only 26. The champion went out in six innings, for an average of 123. It was a remarkable performance, everybody said, and one that demonstrated the strength of Smith's billiards.

York Club Signs Citrano

The York club of the New York-Pennsylvania league has bought Shortstop Tony Citrano from the Baltimore club on the supposition that Citrano can be reinstated. He got on the "in bad" list when he jumped to play with the industrial team in Baltimore several years ago. Most of the players who jumped about the same time have obtained reinstatement.

Both Huggins and McGraw will endeavor to set a modern baseball record by winning their fourth consecutive pennants in the American and National leagues this season.

Perhaps the most active fighter in the game at present is Young Stribling, the Georgia schoolboy light heavyweight. Stribling fights three or four times a month, and usually wins. Stribling is fairly clever, but no hitter. He rarely ever drops an opponent.

Seeking Reinstatement

Dick Kerr, out-time star pitcher of the Chicago White Sox, and one pitcher who played straight in the "crooked" series of 1919, will apply for reinstatement to Commissioner Landis.

Max Carey of Pittsburgh Still Is Fleet of Foot

After 13 years on the paths, that grand old vet, Max Carey of Pittsburgh, still fits on a lighter, faster foot than any youngster of them all down the track of time and baseball glory. All Max did was to steal 51 bases last year. And, added to what Max has done before, it gives him a total of 553 stolen bases for his 13 big league years of service.

It is not alone by a fast foot that Carey made his 1923 record, but also by a quick mind and a close study of pitchers. His head helped him as much as his feet.

Carey took part in 153 games last season, which would indicate that he had borne up well under his major league years. He batted only .308, but his young foot and his old head enabled him to score 120 precious runs for his club from his mild batting average.

His outfield record also looms high in the stove league sky, for he had 487 chances out there, the record, for fielders. Carey has played 1,803 games in a Pirate uniform and his black flag is still nailed to the mast.

Coach Glenn Warner Is to Vie With Andy Smith

With the passing of Glenn Warner from Pittsburgh to Leland Stanford, one of the most successful veteran football coaches of the East is thrown out to the Pacific coast section.

It also brings Warner, a Cornell man, in direct opposition to Andy Smith, a Penn man, who has wrought such wonders at the University of California.

Warner's coming will arouse a new hope at Stanford, where, for too many seasons, their teams have gone up against great—almost insuperable—odds. He comes at a time when Stanford's material looks far more promising than of late years, and when California's supermen have graduated. Altogether this new rivalry will add immensely to the interest in football on the coast.

Stickler for Rules in a Game of Golf

For strict attention to business in the matter of standing at a hole the prize should surely go to a golfer who played around without a caddy. Being unable to see the pin at a certain hole, he asked his opponent's caddy to hold up the flag. The latter responded to the request and the ball struck him. The caddyless player then claimed the hole under the rule about a player's ball being interfered with by an opponent or his caddy, and there was nothing for the committee in charge to do but award him the hole.

Proper Brewing of Tea Told by Chinese Poet

High tea would have been deemed an abomination by the Chinese poet Lu Wuh, who held that no food should be taken in conjunction with the most delicious of all beverages. Lu Wuh maintained that only three ingredients are necessary for its decoction—tea, water and salt—but each should be selected with care.

"The leaves of the tea plant must have creases like the leathern boot of a Tartar horseman, must curl like the dewlap of a mighty bullock; must unfold like the mist rising out of a ravine, must gleam like a lake touched by a zephyr; and be wet and soft like fine earth newly swept by rain." According to this authority a mountain spring furnished the best water for tea making, with river water and ordinary spring water next in order of excellence.

"There are three stages of boiling," Lu Wuh goes on to say. "The first boil is when the little bubbles like the eye of fishes swim on the surface. The second boil is when the bubbles are like crystal beads rolling in a fountain. The third boil is when the billows surge wildly in the kettle."

Salt is put in the first boil, tea in the second boil; at the third a diffusive of cold water is poured into the kettle to settle the tea and revive "the youth of the water," after which the decoction is poured into cups and drunk.—Manchester Guardian.

Paine Helped Create and Named the U. S. A.

To the average American Thomas Paine is known merely as an "infidel." He has been told that Paine wrote a book entitled "Age of Reason" that assailed orthodox Christianity. He may not know that two decades before the "Age of Reason" Paine, a native of England, wrote a pamphlet that started the American colonists really to think of separating themselves from England and joining themselves together as a new nation, says the Detroit News.

When the revolution first started it was only a revolt against oppressive measures of taxation and unjust political discrimination. Even Washington as late as May, 1775, declared himself against separation.

Then, early in January, 1776, Paine published "Common Sense," in which he not merely proposed an independent nation to the dissatisfied colonists, but raised the rebellion to the higher plane of a war for liberty. Washington was converted immediately. Paine declined to accept any profit from the work for himself, but gave all the financial proceeds to the patriot cause. It was in "Common Sense" that the present name of the nation, "the United States of America," first appeared.

Did Moliere Wear Iron Mask?

M. Loquin, a former president of the Academie de Bordeaux, holds that the man in the iron mask was none other than Moliere, whose disappearance the results were supposed to have urged the king to compass after the great triumph of "Tartuffe."

"Moliere," says this learned man, "died February 17, 1673; the captivity of the man in the iron mask lasted 31 years, from February, 1673, to November, 1703."

The significant silence that prevailed before Moliere was regarded as dead and

Novels in a Nutshell

Much has been written in criticism of English, French and Russian novels, but never have their essential nature been so crisply described as in these paragraphs of anonymous origin:

An English novel is a book in which two people want each other in the first chapter, but do not get each other until the last chapter.

A French novel is a book in which two people get each other right in the first chapter and from then on to the last chapter don't want each other any more.

A Russian novel is one in which two people neither want each other nor get each other, and round that fact 69 profoundly melancholy pages are written.—Youth's Companion.

Experienced

A victim of chronic bronchitis called on a doctor to be examined. The doctor, after careful questioning, assured the patient that the ailment would respond readily to treatment. "I suppose you must have had a great deal of experience with this disease?" said the sufferer.

The doctor smiled wisely, and replied: "Why, my dear sir, I've been bronchitis myself for over fifteen years."—Christian Evangelist.

Seeing by Wireless Is Near, Says a Scientist

Edmund Edward Fournier-d'Albe, inventor of the optophone, which enables the blind to read through their ears, and the tonoscope, which makes speech intelligible to the deaf, has stated his prophecy to those of other scientists who recently have forecast the early achievement of television—seeing by wireless. Dr. Fournier-d'Albe presented to be quoted as saying: "I believe television will be accomplished this year. I'll stake my whole scientific reputation on it—I'm certain of it."

He envisages a time a few years hence, says the New York World, when explorers equipped with television cameras will make possible the projection on moving-picture screens of European and American cities, the scenes attending their climbs, say of Mount Everest, or their polar explorations, or even the examination of the ocean's floor by means of submarines. Doctor Fournier-d'Albe is credited with sending the first photograph by radio.

LEAPS FROM PLANE 21,500 FEET IN AIR

Soldier Makes Record Jump With Parachute in Texas.

San Antonio, Tex.—Assertions sometimes made that a man falling 1,000 feet will lose consciousness in the terrific speed attained stand disproved recently by Corporal C. Eugene Conrad of Kelly field, who now holds the Southern record for parachute jumping as a result of successfully leaping from a De Havilland airplane at an altitude of 21,500 feet here.

Conrad not only did not lose consciousness in a drop of 1,100 feet from the plane before his parachute opened, but he retained his wits, counted the seconds and when eight had elapsed pulled the cord which opened the parachute. Less than twenty-five minutes later he had landed safely in a muddy alley a mile and a half from the point above which he had leaped.

The plane in which he rode, piloted by Lieut. Leland Andrews, also of Kelly field, spiraled to its dizzy height in less than two hours. It was not equipped with a super-charger and thus established a record in altitude for a regulation army plane. Lieutenant Andrews believes he could have gone higher but for fouled spark plugs. Oxygen tanks were carried for both men, but not used.

Their only discomfort was cold. The ground temperature was above 50 degrees when they started, but above 10,000 feet it was so cold Conrad became thoroughly chilled and could not get warm, even when he climbed forward near the engine.

It was Andrews, guiding the plane, who placed Conrad's numb fingers around the rip cord of the parachute before Conrad climbed over the side. The parachute opened in a stiff breeze and started carrying its burden back towards Kelly field. Neither parachute nor Conrad was visible to watchers below and the plane long since had vanished. At 12,000 feet above the earth the parachute was first seen, and, soon after, struck by a south wind, it started carrying Conrad toward a small lake. Farther down a third wind current, this time from the northwest, intervened, and carried Conrad to safety. Andrews' landing was made without incident.

Woman Tours Continent on Horse in Six Years

Spokane, Wash.—Miss Helen H. Thinglestad of Lone, Wash., recently completed a horseback circle tour of the continent that required between six and seven years of intermittent traveling. She made the entire journey alone.

Her expenses for the trip were met by working along the way, and stops of three months or more were made at various cities for the purpose.

Down the Pacific coast to Los Angeles and thence along the southern border to New Orleans, Miss Thinglestad and her four-footed companion made their way. They crossed the American desert in July by traveling at night. Thence they traveled north to Virginia and turned homeward through Kansas, Colorado and Wyoming.

Miss Thinglestad crossed the continental divide six times during her travels, she said, and three times she encountered snow and three times it rained. She carried complete camping equipment and often relieved her horse's burden by walking considerable distances.

"A woman has nothing to fear, traveling alone," she said. "The people always were wonderfully kind to us. I usually camped near some farm house, for I had to procure food for my horse."

"Sea Dogs" of Old Still Survive, Says Captain

Washington.—Seafaring men who like the adventures of the bygone Gloucester days still survive on Newfoundland, where they go seal hunting north of the Grand Banks, dynamiting their way through ice and pursuing their prey over the ice as a hunter does wild game.

Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, famous Arctic explorer, navigator of the "Roosevelt" when Peary discovered the North Pole, showed motion pictures of this romantic industry before members of the National Geographic society at the new Masonic temple.

Movie pictures taken by Captain Bartlett showed every stage of the seal hunt, from the time the ships set forth, with frozen meat which literally has to be chopped, and the sailor delicacy, "plum duff," until the seal is stripped of its leather, which goes into the making of moccasins and other similar articles, and yields its oil.

Teacher Is Ousted for Kissing Senior

Kansas City, Kans.—The city board of education, after stormy session, unanimously voted to oust E. E. Damon, high school printing instructor, for kissing a girl senior. Damon claimed he was the victim of a plot and nearly 300 students at the meeting applauded when he finished answering the charge.

The girl whom Damon kissed addressed the board in behalf of the instructor. She said Damon kissed her "on a dare," and "we would have thought we had scored against any teacher if he had refused a dare."

How Sturgeon Invented the Electro-Magnet

A hundred years ago the electro-magnet was born. Its inventor was William Sturgeon, a soldier at Woolwich, near London. As a lad he followed his father's trade as a shoemaker, and he never regretted it, for shoemaking taught him to use his eyes and fingers with uncommon power. In hours of leisure he was fond of experiment. He noticed that soft iron was magnetic only while in contact with a steel magnet. When he severed them the soft iron instantly lost its attraction. It occurred to him to place a core of soft iron within an electric coil. At once that core became a magnet of uncommon strength. When he broke the current the magnetism of the soft iron vanished. He created the electro-magnet.

The American physicist, Joseph Henry, greatly improved the device Sturgeon had invented. That inventor had wound only one coil of copper wire around his iron core, using varnish on the iron as a means of insulation. Henry surrounded the coil core with several close coils covered with silk thread, obtaining a much more powerful magnet than that of Sturgeon. From the very beginning of telegraphy the electro-magnet has been the very heart of the apparatus. A momentary current is received from a distant station in a coil of copper wire; that instant its soft iron core becomes a magnet, and in attracting its armature gives a signal.

In telephones as well as in telegraphs, in dynamos and motors, in automatic printers and a host of other inventions, electro-magnets command motion and rest instantly, strongly and dependably.

Got His Advance Tip

A man who was in the habit of dining regularly at a certain restaurant said to the waiter, "John, instead of tipping you every day, I'm going to give it to you in a lump sum at the end of every month."

"Thank you, sir," replied the waiter, "but I wonder if you'd mind paying me in advance?"
"Well, it's rather strange," remarked the patron. "However, here's five shillings. I suppose you are in want of money, or is it that you distrust me?"
"Oh, no, sir," smiled John, slipping the money in his pocket. "Only I'm leaving here today."

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

Report of This District

are poured out upon him by the "powers-that-be" in the cities. His own protection he has been compelled to seek in wool, eggs, milk, etc., and, righteously, demands a fair profit. The Dairy League and the Farm Bureau are organizations and, on the whole, have been very helpful. Unfortunately a milk war exists in the county between the poolers and the non-poolers which, naturally, is a proven very disastrous to the farmers throughout the county. It is of general interest to housewives who pay fourteen cents or more per quart for milk. To learn the farmers of Delaware county, in March, received four and a half cents per quart for the milk. The market found for milk and they receive one cent above this price. Such conditions manifestly enhance the difficulty to meet or pay interest on the mortgage, as well as to pay the state, county and school taxes.

The preacher, who naturally sympathizes with this anxious condition, must not be charged with selfish or lukewarmness to general Methodism. If he prudently at times to "carry out" the suggestions of "program" committees who are of necessity ignorant, sometimes thoughtless, in regard to these tense local conditions, and to the success of the church, he is eager for the success of the church and the success of the church.

Too much emphasis can not be laid on the truth that, in many churches, the face of many difficulties and the heavy burdens, great effort has been evidenced to maintain the standards of other years in connection with our benefices. In order that our world interests shall not suffer, the Centenary returns up to the 31st, were most gratifying, and I hope that the last half of the year will be equally successful. The new World Service Bureau, many copies of which have been sold, has done and is doing much to stimulate greater interest in the church both at home and abroad. In nearly every church, Epworth League, Sunday schools and other organizations, study classes are being formed and the members are profitably employed in securing such valuable knowledge from this interesting and instructive book.

The Christian Advocate is another helpful educational messenger. By special arrangement with the circulation department, three hundred and ninety trial subscriptions were sent out, one-half of the cost of which was met by the generosity of one of our progressive laymen. Fifty-three of these trial subscriptions have been renewed for 1924. This does not include the special enterprise of Trinity Church, Kingston, whose official board placed the Advocate in every home of its membership for three months. The results illustrate the fruitfulness of this missionary propaganda.

In 1910 the sum total for benevolences in the Kingston district was $2,144; in 1923 it was $63,400. If the best year of benevolent gifts during the last five years is accepted as a district standard and the total amount handed down to the district superintendent and a district committee for apportionment, it would be more democratic; would allow considerable irritation in some quarters and, finally, would produce greater results than the present method. So far as I can determine, nowhere is there a desire or anxiety to return to old standards. The pastors have faithfully, patiently and persistently labored with official boards to introduce efficient business methods in the conduct of church finances. This reformatory of church life, in operation only in part; but, even so, it is a vast improvement over the haphazard, haphazard methods of former years. The average preacher five dollars a week, or less, is a vast improvement over the haphazard, haphazard methods of former years. The average preacher five dollars a week, or less, is a vast improvement over the haphazard, haphazard methods of former years.

If our churches could be protected and relieved from the never-ending appeals which, if permitted, would appear every Sunday of the year, it would be a sane and welcome relief to our long-suffering congregations. The historic holy days of the church should be exempt from financial appeals and obligations and be devoted absolutely to sacred and spiritual purposes.

The Kingston district has had an epidemic of centennials this year. Four churches have celebrated the hundredth anniversary of their foundation by special and religious observances. St. James' was honored by the presence of Bishop W. F. Anderson, a former pastor, Bishop Luther B. Wilson and other distinguished guests.

Township on the Hobart charge had an excellent and varied program. This historic center was made famous by such pioneers as Freeborn Garretson and Nathan Bangs, who, it is doubtful, ever addressed so large an audience as listened to Bishop Wilson on the great day of the feast. The whole program was admirably planned and consummated.

The Harpersfield and Treadwell churches also had happy and enjoyable anniversaries. Former pastors and old friends, together with the writer, brought words of congratulation and good wishes.

The district stewards met in May and were addressed by the Rev. Dr. G. B. Dean and the Rev. Dr. George Elliott.

The field day at Cairo, in early September, was a definite success. The Rev. Arthur Hewitt and the Rev. A. B. Moss graced the occasion and brought uplifting cheer and wise counsel. The first of a series of group meetings, under the auspices of the Rural society, began that evening at Clinton Avenue church, Kingston. Bishop Wilson was present and delivered an inspiring address to a crowded congregation. The preachers and laity have deeply appreciated the time and attention our Episcopal leader has been able to give them. In my grateful acknowledgment I would testify that Bishop Wilson's personal and intimate contact with the people of this district has been exceedingly helpful and encouraging to us all.

Thirteen other rallies were held in September and October. S. S. Robbins, president of the rural society, and other brethren rendered valuable assistance. The last week of October was devoted to a training conference at Hensonsville, followed by the district conference at Windham. The inspiring features were the lovefeast led by the Rev. F. H. Carpenter; the sermon by the Rev. F. B. Harris, and the evening message by the Rev. Dr. A. S. Kavanagh. The ministers and lay members of the district took part in the program which was earnest and evangelistic throughout. The Epworth League convention held the next day brought together a large and enthusiastic number of young people. After four years of office, R. L. Mutterstock was succeeded by Albert H. Shultis, a progressive young layman of Kingston.

One hundred and twenty-four years of Methodist effort and the semi-Centennial of the present home were observed in New Baltimore in January, by holding an old home week, which proved exceedingly helpful and profitable.

The grim reaper, death, has visited and removed four of our retired brethren this year. In June, Albert E. Lord, after a long siege of illness, entered the land where sickness and pain are unknown. In him mercy and truth met together; righteousness and peace kissed each other.

Platt N. Chase was called from time to eternity November 1st. As we all knew, he was an untiring worker. A few days before he passed hence, he celebrated his fiftieth Kingston district conference at Windham, where he was shown high honor and enjoyed himself to the utmost. Later he attended a social function in his beloved East Kingston, contracted a cold and in a few days died uttering words in the triumph of Christian faith. His last words to the writer uttered in the morning hours of the morning were characteristic of him. "Well," said he, "the fight is over." He will have many stars in his crown.

On January tenth, A. H. Haynes, a veteran of the Civil War, laid down the weapons of his warfare and answered to the Great Roll Call.

Vernor D. Mattice, well known throughout the district, fell asleep in the latter part of May. The last few weeks of his life were filled with pain and suffering patiently borne.

A. A. Platt, who was compelled to take a Sabbatical year at the last session, is also added to the list of our honored dead. He was hopeful and optimistic to the end of his journey.

In October, S. E. Myers, a retired local preacher, passed away, having served acceptably filled many years of service in the district. Supply appointments on the district. Death has also removed some of our strong laymen: S. E. Eighmey, of Housonville charge, $500; Hobart Trinity, Kingston; J. B. Griffin, of Margaretville; G. C. Griffin, of Prattsville, and D. C. Hoagland, of $3,800; Trinity, Kingston, $200; Stamford, $692; Lexington charge, $500; Manokill, $200; New Balltown, $1,600; Olive Bridge, $150; Palenville, $30; Phoenix, $364; Pine Hill charge, $1,134; Port Ewen, $761; Prattsville, $800; Ravena, $500; Round Top, $1,500; South Roundout, $150; Stamford, $1,538; Tannersville, $300; Treadwell, $2,000; West Fulton, $115; Windham, $750; Walton, $550; Woodstock charge, $450.

Though space limitation forbids mention of the names of the pastors in connection with all these undertakings, let it be truly understood and appreciated that, without their leadership, the ultimate success in many instances would have been doubtful and in some cases, well-nigh impossible. Full credit also must be given to the Ladies' Aid Societies, many of whom paid a large share of the total cost, securing funds largely through serving church suppers, which involves the expenditure of much valuable time, strength and effort and, undoubtedly, the sacrifice of hundreds of chickens to enable these obligations to be met.

All sorts of new organizations have sprung into being for the betterment and uplift of youth and the nurture of child life. Arkville has a children's church, boys' club and sewing classes. At Ashokan and Dornansville, Bible study classes have been formed. At Hunter there is a new girls' society called "The Weavers," and a boys' club called "The Builders." At East Jewett, a Ladies' Aid Society; at Palenville, an Epworth League; at Shandaken, a Junior Bible class and a men's Bible class; at Saugerties and Margaretville, Boy Scout troops have been formed; at Walton, a men's club, and at Woodstock, Missionary societies organized.

I presume that Stamford has the most unique scheme of all to stimulate attendance and interest in the Sunday school. All junior and intermediate scholars, who win a certain percentage for attendance, etc., receive a two-days' trip, with all expenses paid, to Albany. The primary department receives as a reward a one-day trip to Cooperstown, just beyond Oneonta. The attendance and interest in these schools have more than doubled since this contest was inaugurated.

There is also a very noticeable improvement in the morale of the district. There is an atmosphere of expectancy in many places. Preachers are more hopeful; congregations are increasing and, it may be, that the prayers of the faithful are about to be answered and a real genuine revival of religions be not very far distant.

In conclusions may I say that the same spirit of cooperation, brotherliness and good will, which are such strong characteristics of this district, still exist to a marked degree among us. The pastors and their families, together with the brethren of the laity, in every way, have been exceedingly gracious and kind to the writer and I am more than grateful.

On the whole our churches are better equipped to do effective work than ever before, and each year adds to the installation of new heating plants, electric lighting systems and other modern improvements. In some instances new rooms have been added to the present church buildings; a modern kitchen built and furnished; in other places, church galleries, long the home of dust and rubbish, have been transformed, converted into rooms for organized Sunday school classes and social purposes generally. The parsonages, have also shared in this spirit of progress. Most of our parsonages, except in the open country, have modern improvements. Furthermore and happily, the old barns are coming down and in place thereof a neat garage is built on the rear of the parsonage lot. Both St. James', Kingston and Delhi have added these much needed improvements.

The most outstanding building project on the district, is the new and removed four of our retired brethren this year. In June, Albert E. Lord, after a long siege of illness, entered the land where sickness and pain are unknown. In him mercy and truth met together; righteousness and peace kissed each other.

Mah Jong Dermatitis Is the Newest Disease

Mah Jong dermatitis is the latest thing in diseases. Devotees of the oriental game are given some facts concerning the disease—an irritation of the skin, according to Hygieia.

Mah Jong cases are manifested freely with Japanese lacquer, says the health journal, and in some instances the lacquer is soft and sticky. It has been scientifically proved that this improperly dried lacquer causes the skin disease which has been afflicting some of the players of the game.

Hundreds of thousands of mah jong sets are now in use in the United States, and only a few cases of the disease have been reported, but now that physicians are on the lookout for the disease others will probably be brought to light.

To prevent any possibility of the disease it will be necessary to see that the lacquer has been well applied and thoroughly dried before the boxes are shipped.

Not all, of course, are sensitive to the disease in an equal degree. Treatment for it is not difficult.

Those who are especially sensitive to the lacquer will have to be content with dominoes, flum or auction bridge, says the article.

PITCHERS MUST GET BREAKS TO SUCCEED

Winner of 25 Games in One Year Is Very Lucky.

The showing of Ed Rummel in winning 27 games for a club that finished seventh in the American league is one of the greatest pitching feats ever recorded.

Any time a major league pitcher wins 25 games or more, he must not only pitch good ball but he must also be favored by the breaks. It seems the good pitchers usually get the breaks.

Good pitchers are often called on by their manager in a pinch. When there is a chance of winning a game for holding a lead, the star pitcher invariably is called upon.

That was the case with Rummel last year. With the score tied and the pitcher wavering, or having been removed for a pinch hitter, Rummel was the man Mack always called upon.

In perhaps 9 of the 27 victories scored by Rummel, he was returned to the victor in games in which he pitched only from one to three innings.

If the Athletics tied the score in the eighth or ninth, Rummel would be the choice for relief work, and on many occasions the Athletics would go right out and get the winning run for Ed in the very next inning, which, of course, would give him credit for the victory.

Of course, when a pitcher takes up a tie game he has the same chance to lose or win, and is deserving of the credit for the game, considering it is a 50-50 proposition. However, one gets a big break when time after time the margin falls on their side. Rummel was blessed with that good fortune last year; otherwise he never would have been able to win 27 games with a seventh-place club.

Red Sox Sign Rube Forsythe

Former Colonial Pitcher Accepts Offer of Poughkeepsie Team For 1924 Season—Joy's Team Virtually Completed.

Says the Poughkeepsie Eagle-News.

Rube Forsythe, the elongated New Paltz boy and ace of the Hudson Valley hurlers for the last few years, will don the spangles of the Poughkeepsie Red Sox this season. Announcement that the former star of the old Regulars and Colonials pitching staffs had affixed his John Hancock to a Red Sox contract for 1924 was made officially by the management of the local team Wednesday night.

Rube has been sought after by many teams this spring, chief among them the Red Sox and the Colonials, for whom he toiled and turned in many a victory last year. The lure of Poughkeepsie and of the Red Sox, after, however, turned the tide and Rube now is safely in the fold.

A second announcement of only secondary importance made by the Joe-Tinkelman-Lamaris triumvirate Wednesday was that the signing of infielder O'Mack, a New York boy, on whom Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants has a string. O'Mack is reputed to be a finished fielder and a hard hitter, and is expected to round out the Red Sox infield in great shape. He will be on hand for the opening of the season.

The exact line-up of the infield has not been determined, but it is expected that Joe Start will be used at shortstop and O'Mack at second base.

OLD-TIME BASEBALL RECORDS STILL HOLD

Marks for Throwing and Running Made Years Ago.

Who is the fastest baseball player? Who can encircle the bases in the shortest time? Who can throw a baseball the greatest distance?

Who is the greatest fungo hitter? Names of major league players will come in bunches in answer to these several questions. Babe Ruth of the Yankees, Cy Williams of the Phillies, Ken Williams of the Browns and Harry Heilmann of the Tigers are all past masters of the art of fungo hitting.

Bob Meusel of the Yankees is known nationally as having one of the greatest whips in baseball. Eddie Collins of the White Sox, George Grantham of the Cubs and Frank Frisch of the Giants are all wonderfully fast players. Do they hold the record for the best time in encircling the bases? Take a look at the records.

The record for fungo hitting is 354 feet 10 inches and was made by C. R. Partridge of Hanover, N. H., in October, 1880.

The record has probably never been beaten because no longer are official records taken of fungo hitting. Then, too, it is doubtful whether any of the parks is large enough to permit a fungo hitting contest. Nevertheless, it is interesting to note that the fungo hitting record has remained untouched since 1880.

The record for throwing a baseball is 551 feet 2½ inches and is held by R. C. Campbell of North Adams, Mass., and was made in 1887.

This record will probably stand for a long time to come because of the possibility of injury to players competing in a long-distance throwing contest.

The record for circling the bases is held by C. Fulforth of Racine, Wis. His time of 15½ seconds was made in 1879.

Sporting Squibs

The boxing matches in the Olympic games will be held from July 15 to 20.

John L. Sullivan was 5 feet 10½ inches in height and weighed 196 pounds.

In the announcement that Dempsey and Gibbons will fight again, just what do they mean by "again?"

The United States amateur golf tournament will be held at the Marion Cricket club, Philadelphia, September 20-27.

The first intercollegiate regatta this season will be University of Washington.

All for Nothing

Archie's deaf aunt was paying them a visit and her affliction greatly impressed the little fellow. As he and his small sister were getting ready for bed he remarked: "Isn't it awful to be deaf, Nancy. Just think of having to wash your ears every day and never getting any good out of them at all."—Boston Transcript.

First Boat Engine

Among the most interesting exhibits in the South Kensington museum is the engine that propelled the Comet, the first passenger steamboat in European waters. It was designed by Henry Bell, a Scotch genius, who amazed the world with his little steam-propelled boat puffing merrily along at a speed of five miles an hour.

Army Mask Useful

The army gas mask has been found good for use on locomotives moving through railroad tunnels, but it does not protect against carbon monoxide gas found in mines or gases found in burning buildings.

Crowding Eddie Collins

John Clifford Happeney, infielder of the Chicago White Sox, former college all-around athlete, is now trying to crowd Eddie Collins out of his second-base position. His career is interesting, as he stepped from the college diamond into professional ball. He was a student at Massachusetts Tech and the University of Illinois.
